PUSHES ADVISORY COUNCIL PLAN

Changed Scenes Mark End of First Year Of Roosevelt's 2nd Term

President Faces New Year With Industries On Decline But Supreme Court Developments Arm Him With New Power to Carry Out Economic Policies Planned For U. S.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt completed the first year of his second term today, facing new problems born of a business recession, but clothed by the supreme court with new powers to meet them.

Historians may remember the year for two reasons:

1. The industrial decline that marked its final month.
2. The momentous judicial developments in which the president suffered his most severe legislative defeat but ultimately triumphed in his demand for broader supreme court interpretation of the constitution.

Partly because of the bitterness engendered by his court reorganization bill, congress moved away from the president during the year almost as decisively as the supreme court moved toward him.

The change in the business situation was equally marked. A year ago, when industry was booming, Mr. Roosevelt said in his inaugural speech, "our progress out of the depression is obvious." A balanced budget for this fiscal year was indicated.

Now the president is busy conferring with industrial leaders on ways of stopping the recession. He and congress are struggling to hold the year's federal deficit as close as possible to a billion dollars.

Mr. Roosevelt took his second oath a year ago today in a downpour of rain. But his political prospects were bright. The only visible obstacle to his program was the possibility of unfavorable supreme court decisions.

Asks Court Bill.

Two weeks later Mr. Roosevelt suddenly undertook to get around that obstacle. He asked congress to enlarge the court provided those members over 70 years of age did not retire. A nationwide controversy followed.

The next few months brought [illegible] developments which vitally affected the congressional battle over the court bill. Some of those who led the president's fight have blamed these happenings for defeat.

One was the spread of sit-down strikes in the automobile industry. Many members of congress were aroused because the president did not intervene.

Then came a series of supreme court decisions holding constitutional state minimum wage laws, the Wagner Labor act, and the social security law.

Some legislators pleaded with the president to withdraw the court bill. Too late, he agreed to a compromise that won few votes. Suddenly, his legislative 95-Second Air Raid Wounds 1,200 In Barcelona.

BARCELONA—(UP)—Casualties in a 95-second air raid of three nationalist airplanes yesterday were estimated unofficially today to total 1,600—400 killed, 1,200 wounded.

Rescue workers were still searching ruins today for bodies of persons killed, and for those wounded who still lived.

The nationalist planes descended to 1,500 feet and dropped their bombs along a straight line leading in toward the railroad station.

One of the planes machine gunned people along the streets near the station.

One bomb went down an elevator shaft in an apartment building and exploded in the basement, bringing down most of the building on the tenants.

S.R.O. SIGN UP AS SCHOOL ENDS

Food Institute Attracts Record Crowd On Final Day; Author And Lecturer Speaks.

The S. R. O. sign was hung out at the Ohio theater this morning for the Gasco Food Institute, as more than 1,600 Mansfield women filled the theater to capacity for the third and final session of the school.

Today's attendance was the largest of the three days and the largest to attend a cooking school sponsored here by the Ohio Fuel Gas company, according to William C. Mead, district manager of the company.

The three-day school opened Tuesday morning with the attendance for the first two days—2,450. The school was staged by the Ohio Fuel Gas company in co-operation with The News-Journal.

The feature of the final session was a talk by Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, prominent lecturer, author and authority on home making philosophy. Dr. Burkhart spoke on "Achieving Happiness in the Home."

Classes of the school were conducted by Miss Katherine Thiele, special food lecturer, and authority on home making, who is associated with the Gasco Institute. She was assisted by Miss Pauline Schofield, home service representative of the gas company in Mansfield.

"Art Enters the Kitchen" was the theme of the final session. A number of intresting and attractive dishes were prepared by Miss Thiele and Miss Schofield, and when, finished, were attractively combined and garnished and displayed in a picture frame, stressing that a housewife should take as much pride and interest in creating and preparing food as an artist takes in creating a picture.

Jury Checks O. S. R. Financial Records

CHIEF CLERK RECALLED TO STAND TODAY

Parole Inquiry Turns To Some Of Transactions Between 1923 and 1932.

EX-GUARD TO TESTIFY

Richland Farmer Subpoenaed; Send For Inmate Serving Term In Honor Camp.

The special Richland county parole grand jury, sitting at Mansfield reformatory, turned its attention to the institution's financial records today, as Chief Clerk Ben F. Owen was called to the witness stand.

Owen had testified briefly yesterday, just before C. O. Bish, former guard at the reformatory, went into the grand jury room, and was recalled today as the first witness. His testimony occupied all of this morning's session, and forced Assistant Attorney General George Hurley, in charge of the investigation, to delay his plans for taking the jurors on a tour of the reformatory.

Takes Records Into Room.

Owen took one volume of records into the grand jury room with him Yesterday afternoon, trusties hauled four huge volumes from the first floor office to the third floor, where the grand jury is sitting Owen sat outside the jury room for most of the afternoon, with the books beside him, but was not called.

Owen made one trip this morning from the grand jury to his office for additional records, but would not comment on their nature. It was learned, however, that the records the grand jury was inspecting go back to 1922.

DIES TONIGHT

Brother's Slayer First Woman To Go To Illinois Chair.

CHESTER, Ill. — (AP) — Dourvisaged Mrs. Marie Porter, convicted of her brother's murder, vainly awaited clemency today, unaware she was doomed to die shortly after midnight tonight—the first woman to go to the electric chair in Illinois.

Warden Joseph Montgomery of southern Illinois state penitentiary said he would tell the condemned St. Louis woman "later" that Gov. Henry Horner reported he had "been unable to find any circumstances to mitigate the heinousness of this crime" and denied her plea.

Angela Ralph Giancola, 22-year-old triggerman, also denied clemency, received word of his fate stoically. He said he was "ready to go—if she does."

"I'm guilty," he said without emotion "I had it coming to me."

LIQUOR OFFICES GUARDED

CINCINNATI— (AP) —Police guarded the offices of the Ohio liquor control board today although they placed little credence in a telephoned threat that "six men armed with machine guns" were coming to the building. The board concludes today a three-day hearing of complaints in this area.

Play Must Go On — With or Without Scenery

Conforming to the unofficial by-law of the theater, "the play must go on," members of the cast of "Father Malachy's Miracle," make a one-night stand in a New York theater bare of all scenery. The unusual predicament arose when a theater union established a picket line around the St. James theater, charging non-union men working in the box office. The producer sought to move the play to the Guild theater, Union teamsters refused to move the scenery. The play went on anyway, without scenery, to a capacity crowd at the Guild theater. However, the group now has returned to the St. James theater. Photo shows Al Shean, as Father Malachy, with a sign indicating his church.

Recommends Flasher For Bowman Street Crossing

Investigator Says He'll Urge Watchman Temporarily; Calls Figures of Traffic Check 'Impressive.'

Terming figures obtained from a traffic check at the Bowman street crossing of the B. and O. railroad "impressive," W. E. Harrington, investigator for the state utilities commission, told Mayor Claude M. Hunter today that he would recommend to the commission that it order the railroad to erect flasher signals at the crossing and employe a watchman until the installation can be made.

The traffic check, conducted over a 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m today, showed that 3,315 passenger automobiles, 392 trucks, eight buses and 1,266 pedestrians had crossed the tracks. During that time, nine trains passed over the crossing In submitting the data to Harrington, Hunter again pointed out that the figure was below normal, because Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company is operating on a curtailed schedule.

Urges Early Action.

Harrington expressed amazement that the crossing had been unguarded so long, as he revealed he would recommend a watchman and installation of signals as soon as possible.

The mayor said today that he will ask the commission to conduct a similar check on a number of other crossings in the city which are on heavily traveled streets and which have only part time protection

Hunter will give the commission a list of these crossings as

The attorney general praised Reed's legal ability and said the nomination of the 53-year-old Kentuckian was a "great personal satisfaction."

The judiciary sub-committee will put the nomination of the solicitor general before the full judiciary committee Monday. Prompt approval was expected and final senate confirmation was slated for early next week.

Mattson Boy's Kin See Ross Kidnap-Killer

Brother, Sister of Slain Youth Taken to Frisco to View Suspect.

ST. PAUL—(UP)—The only persons who saw the kidnaper and murderer of 10-year-old Charles Mattson have viewed Peter Anders, 30, confessed kidnaper and murderer of Charles S. Ross, aged and wealthy Valentine manufacturer, it was established definitely today.

Whether these persons—the brother and sister of the Mattson child— identified Anders as the bearded man who stole the boy from the home of his physician father in Tacoma, Wash., was known only to them and to department of justice agents who had taken every precaution against premature publication of their full case against the flint-eyed Anders, who had admitted that he killed Ross and then his partner in crime, J. Atwood Gray, in cold blood. Gray was murdered because Anders did not want him to share the $50,000 ransom received in the Ross kidnaping.

Plans Held Secret.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the department of justice's bureau of investigation, was supervising the completion of the goverment's case amid great secrecy and mystery here.

Hoover told newsmen Tuesday night, however, that Andres "is not a suspect in the Mattson case."

There was a marked resemblance between photographs of Anders and an artist's sketch of the Mattson kidnaper as drawn from descriptions provided by the child witness. Hoover, in his first announcement of Ander's arrest, had said that Anders had once been a logger in Washington state and lived in Seattle.

In Tacoma, Dr. William W. Mattson confirmed that his children—Muriel, 16, and William, jr., 14—had been taken to San Francisco to view Anders while he was en route from Los Angeles to St. Paul A newspaper in San Francisco reported without confirmation that the children had failed to identify him. Mattson would not comment on this report.

Meanwhile, Hoover and his aids have pressed their clean-up of the case vigorously.

There was no announcement nor indication of what line G-men were following in their search for Ross's body or in gleaning additional details of the crime, which has been confessed by Peter Anders.

It was not known whether a party of agents, headed by Hoover, which left here at 8 a. m. yesterday apparently to search for Ross' body had returned.

'FRIENDS' AGAIN

Davey, Sawyer Break Bread At Same Banquet Table.

CINCINNATI — (UP) — Despite their recent interchange of letters, Gov. Martin L. Davey and Charles A. Sawyer, Ohio Democratic national committeeman, last night forgot their political animosity long enough to break bread together and to pose for photographs.

The two potential rivals for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination even raised their voices in duet for a lusty singing of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," one of the governor's favorite tunes.

The occasion was a testimonial dinner for Moses Strauss, retiring managing editor of a Cincinnati newspaper, at which Davey and Sawyer were among the guests. They sat side by side for two hours.

Apparently this was due to a trick in switching place cards.

ROOSEVELT TO ARRANGE NEW CONFERENCE

President To Call Leaders Of Small Business After Meeting Industrialists.

STUDY RECESSION 'CURE'

Conferees Tell President 'Uncertainties' Must Be Lifted For Business.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt planned to summon small business men to a conference similar to that which he held yesterday with 50 major industrial leaders, as he pushed his plan today for a continuing, all-embracing advisory council to help form national economic policies.

The White House said that Mr. Roosevelt has ordered his aids to select at random from stacks of letters from small businessmen, a number of names. Those selected will be asked to come to Washington for conferences supplementing those already held with the nation's leading industrial executives.

The conferences will be part of the broad picture Mr. Roosevelt is now assembling in an endeavor to form a program against recession.

Cover All Businesses.

Consumers, investors, credit men, farmers, laborers, distributors, transportation men, financiers, and big and little business men—all these should have a voice, Mr. Roosevelt told 49 prominent industrialists late yesterday.

Stephen Early, White House secretary, emphasized this did not point to a revival of the NRA.

The president and his visitors, who compose Secretary Roper's business advisory council, harmoniously discussed broad proposals for stemming the recession. Their meeting in the cabinet room next to the president's office lasted for 90 minutes.

The business council members, saying that the United States possesses all factors needed for prosperity, if they are put to use, told the president in a formal statement of their views:

"Uncertainties that exist in the hearts of men today must be eradicated."

It is essential, the statement added, that the public know "what forms of business organizations are to be encouraged in their development and what are to be affected by reform."

Mr. Roosevelt, who said a week ago he was working toward the abolition of all holding compan-

Farida Becomes Wife Of Egypt's Boy King Farouk

CAIRO, Egypt—(AP)—Egypt's boy king, Farouk, took dark-eyed 16-year-old Farida as his wife and queen today in an orthodox Moslem ceremony which the bride did not attend.

But Farida, daughter of an Egyptian high court judge, excluded from the ceremony by Moslem custom, watched it through a lattice-work partition from an adjoining room of the ancient Koubbeh palace.

Guns of the ancient citadel and others throughout the country crashed in royal salute to tell joyous Egyptians their king was wed.

Farida's father and the bridegroom signed the Moslem contract which made her the wife of the 17-year old ruler of Egypt's 16,000,000 people.

The bride slipped away unexpectedly from her heliopolis villa and with her mother drove to the palace in a closed cab.

Wild cheering and the clamor of bells and guns greeted her. Queen Mother Nazli and the king's four younger sisters watched with the bride and her mother.

The crashing guns unleashed three days of celebrations throughout the land of the sphinx.

Temperamental? Not Mary McCormic--- But She's Still Opera's Glamour Gal

Appears Here for 'Song' Despite Fact Her Price Is $1,000 a Concert.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Mary McCormic, the glamour gal of American opera, who walked out on an audience of a thousand persons several months ago in Chico, Cal., when the manager attempted to chisel down her price of $1,000 for a single concert, last night sang for a small Mansfield audience for practically nothing —and gave it all she had.

But that's Mary. Never a dull moment. You have only to talk to this former sister-in-law of Barbara Hutton's for an hour to realize fully why she has been on the front pages for more than 15 years You begin to suspect that this singing bombshell wasn't swept off her feet by the late Prince Serge Mdvani—but that she did the sweeping.

"Temperamental?" she counter queried in answer to a question. "I don't know where I gained a reputation for being temperamental. I've never walked out on a performance when the other party kept to our agreement; I've never failed to show up for an engagement. I don't quarrel with my managers and I don't have hysterics when I can't have my own way."

Her present manager, Mme. LaReine, who introduced the singer last night, agrees that she isn't temperamental, and her explanation of the Chico, Cal., incident sounded like sense.

"Mary had a contract for a $1,000 for the concert, and top

The most striking thing about evening dresses for the young set this mid-winter is their sheerness. Dainty pastels, pink, blue, orchid, in net, organza, lace and tulle, are the favorites. Wide girdles, little jackets, and other decorative details that glisten are used. A pink net dress posed over pale orchid, and with orchid shoulder straps, was one lovely model for the young miss.

Bright colored hiplength jackets in red, yellow and sky blue are being worn at European winter resorts. Informal Tyrolean resorts sponsor the wearing of sports clothes for all hours of the day.

Small, neat designs are growing more and more important for spring clothes

Salada Tea Chosen By Food School Lecturer

In demonstrating how to brew a pot of "perfect tea" at the Gasco Food Institute this week Miss Katherine Thiele, food lecturer, used Salada tea.

Because Orange Pekoe is the favorite tea of American tea drinkers, she decided on that flavor. Orange Pekoe is not, as many persons believe, a brand of tea, but a kind of leaf which all tea companies use.

Its quality depends upon two things: the altitude at which it was grown and the manner in which it is picked and preserved. Tea grown at 5,000 feet above sea level is better than the same kind of tea leaf grown at 2,000 feet, tea manufacturers say.

But even a fine leaf may be ruined in flavor by careless handling and drying. The Salada company blends its Orange Pekoe and its Black Pekoe from the choicest growths, gathered in high altitudes, carefully blended to produce the flavor for which Salada is noted.

Displays Isaly Dairy Products

Visitors at the Gasco food institute this week saw a display of dairy products produced in modern plants of the Isaly Dairy company.

At Isaly's spic and span stores, the housewife may find tasty dairy products. The company distributes milk, cream, cheese, butter, eggs, ice cream and various other dairy products.

Isaly's have four stores located in Mansfield which carry a complete line of dairy products.

Institute Used Sugardale Meats

Sugardale meats, known to housewives throughout northern Ohio, were chosen by Miss Katherine Thiele, home economist, for use at the Gasco Food Institute which closed today at the Ohio theater.

Sugardale meats are widely known for their quality. Housewives who attended the food institute saw Sugardale meats demonstrated and will be shown new and interesting ideas in helping to prepare meals more quickly and less expensively.

The Sugardale meats, distributed by the Sugardale Provision company of Canton, are brought to Mansfield markets daily in refrigerated trucks.

For stuffed celery, use small stalks or cut large stalks into two-inch lengths. Any of the following make good stuffing: chopped pimento-stuffed olives and minced ham; roquefort cheese and minced parsley; snappy cream cheese and mayonnaise; finely-minced tuna, celery, pickles and salad dressing; cream cheese mixed with dates and pecans, sardines, chopped and added to celery, pickles and mayonnaise; chopped shrimps, tuna, salmon or crab added to cream cheese and salad dressing; liver paste mixed with chopped olives and cream.

Many furniture and floor polishes contain highly inflammable ingredients, therefore they should be applied in well-aired rooms. Cloths containing them should be destroyed or stored in metal-covered boxes. Never store such polishes or cloths near a fire. Above all, never work with such polishes near lighted fires.

Foods that build up the body include: milk, butter, eggs, green and leafy vegetables and fruits. Serve them once a day.

JOINS O.P.S. SALES STAFF

Roy W. Vaughn, 139 Prospect street, president of the Mansfield Public Parks association, who has been with the retail furniture business in Mansfield for the past eight years, will join the sales force of the Ohio Public Service company Monday. Vaughn, who was most recently with the Drake Furniture company, was active in the promotion of the municipal July 4 celebration at the fairgrounds last year.

GETS FUNDS TO AID CHILDREN

County Receives First Social Security Allotment Of Year From State.

Richland county today had received its first 1938 quarterly allocation of state funds to aid dependent children under the Social Security program.

The distribution, amounting to $3,776, will be matched by county funds to care for approximately 200 children under 16 years old, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

Children are recommended for care under the plan by Miss Mildred Armstrong, county welfare director, and the county welfare advisory board

In setting up its 1938 appropriation last week, the county provided $12,000 for its share of the expense of caring for the dependent children during the year. Last year total expenditures from the fund were nearly $31,000, Wolfe said, with most of the money provided by the state and federal governments

Allocations by the state to other counties in this area were

Ashland, $1,604, Crawford, $2,114, Holmes, $1,210; Huron, $3,050; Knox, $1,728, and Morrow, $862.

Distributions are made according to the number of children under 16 years old in each county.

'Bridal Wreath' China Exhibited At Food School

"Bridal Wreath" is the name of the dainty china set consisting of 35 pieces which has been on exhibit at the Ohio theater during the Gasco Food Institute. The Brenner Jewelry company, 8 West Third street, is the Mansfield distributor.

This particular china, which is an American-made product, ranges in set sizes from the small breakfast service to sets of a dozen in plain gold rim suitable for formal table settings. In all there are 25 sets of open stock semi-porcelain at the Brenner store.

Designs for the chinaware include the gay and striking floral treatment so popular right now as well as the more conventional styles. In addition to the china which was used in some of the demonstrations at Gasco school, the Brenner company also carries a complete line of "Black Night" china which is made in Australia and is a successor of the old Haviland china.

Mansfielder Brings Action Against Brother and Sister.

Accusing his brother and sister of conducting a "campaign of threats and intimidations" against him, LeRoy Terman, Mansfield, seeks $25,000 damages from them in a suit on file today in common pleas court.

In his petition, the plaintiff contends that the defendants, Earl L. Terman and Blanche M. Terman, both of Mansfield, deprived him of a share in the estate left by his mother, the late Julia A Terman, and that his brother assaulted him last August, resulting in the impairment of his health.

He further charges that his sister induced his father, George W Terman to make his home with her and prejudiced him against the plaintiff.

3 FROM COUNTY GIVEN PAROLES

Mansfielder Convicted In 1926 On Murder Charge Will Be Released Feb. 1.

Three inmates from Richland county were among the 52 paroled yesterday from the Ohio penitentiary by the state parole board which heard 184 cases at Columbus before coming to the Mansfield reformatory.

The board granted a parole to Charles Shew, who was given a life sentence in October, 1926, on a second degree murder conviction. Shew was found guilty of the murder of Carl Leuth. His parole will be effective Feb. 1.

NORTH LAKE PARK RINK TO GET FLOODLIGHTS FOR NIGHT SKATING

A battery of floodlights for night skating will be erected at North Lake park this week, Norman Kellogg of the North Lake park association announced today. The floodlights will be in operation for the week-end skaters, he stated

The new lights will illuminate enough of the lake to permit the staging of night ice carnivals according to Kellogg, who is in charge of booking skating events planned by Mansfield organizations

Kellogg also announced that Jeff Holmquist 70½ North Main street, a former professional baseball player and skating expert has been appointed to serve as full-time manager of the rink.

Holmquist will have charge of the equipment and boathouse, which is open daily between 4 p. m. and 10.

The equipment for conditioning the rink was increased this week by the gift of six additional steel scrapers to the park association by Paul R. Tappan, president of the Tappan Stove company. The scrapers are used to rid the lake of snow.

Arrangements have also been made by the association to have instructors available at the ice to teach beginners. Kellogg, a former figure skating champion of Chautauqua, N. Y., and Holmquist have been placed in charge of the instruction periods.

The series of ice carnivals planned at the rink will be continued Saturday when the Boy Scout troop of the city take over the ice. The first carnival staged for Mansfield high school students last week attracted 200 contestants and 500 spectators

Arrangements for carnivals may be made by contacting Kellogg at Dover 6065.

That's why inspectors are employed constantly in the field while Country Club Peas are ripening. So that harvesting may begin the moment they're just right. And that's why you'll enjoy Country Club Peas. They're only a few hours from vine to you. Trouble Awaits Glenville Tygers Expected to Stage Comeback After Defeat By Sandusky.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

WITNESSES of the defeat suffered by the Mansfield high school hardwood rompers in Sandusky the other evening claim that the Tygers presented the strongest lineup, but they are unable to explain why the Blue Streaks won.

Sandusky scored the most points, and, in the final analysis, this is a pretty good reason for a team winning. The belief that the Blue Streaks should have lost to a superior Tyger quintet cannot change the outcome.

Mansfield was highly favored to hand the then victory-less Blue Streaks their fifth straight setback, but the Tygers and other teams, too, have been picked to win in other games, but it isn't always that the favorites come through

Basketball teams have their "off" and "on" nights. It seems that Mansfield was "off," while Sandusky was "on." That probably explains the matter better than any alibi

It is Mansfield's misfortune to be "off" for all of their Sandusky games. The Tygers failed to perform up to their standard last fall and the year before in football, and the so-called "jinx" remains to haunt the Mansfield team.

The day is bound to come when this condition will be remedied. The Tygers are over-due Maybe the day for revenge will come on the grid next fall. One can never tell.

ACCORDING TO Coach Russ Murphy, the Tygers, who meet Cleveland Glenville in the Mansfield gym Friday night can blame the defeat on themselves

Murphy credits Sandusky with having a stronger team than the records show, but he feels that the Tygers should have won.

Mansfield played "class gymnasium fashion" ball, says Murphy, and this isn't the type of ball which wins basketball games against well-drilled teams of the type of Sandusky

"Gymnasium fashion" basketball, in case you don't know, is the type where every man plays his own style of game in other words, there is no co-ordination.

No criticism can be found in the way the Tygers played in the first half. They actually made the Blue Streaks appear silly at times but they folded up completely after the intermission

They failed to cut into the goal, they passed the leather erratically and did not show any of the aggressiveness that they displayed in the opening half

The Tygers will snap out of the lethargy which marked their play in the second half, and judging from the strenuous drills Murphy is conducting in preparation for Friday, we're not so sure that Cleveland Glenville won't have to stand the brunt of the rebound.

Mansfield is represented by a fairly decent basketball team this winter, but it has been inconsistent. The Sandusky defeat may mean much toward awakening the Tygers to the fact.

THOSE WHO ARE interested in football statistics will enjoy the record book compiled by Richard H. Poling, Mansfield insurance man

Poling put a good deal of hard effort into the publication and the result is one of the finest books on football figures it has been our pleasure to review

The book is printed in loose-leaf form, and purchasers can subscribe for the supplements which will be issued each year. This permits the owner to keep the book up to date.

The edition includes records of the major collegiate games of the last 13 years In addition to listing the scores, the pages include the yearly ranking, starting with 1924 when Notre Dame perched on top of the football world.

Poling also explains the method he employs to rank teams Teams are grouped into three classes In compiling the rankings, Poling considers games won point of margin of victory, games lost, point margin of defeat, ties strength of opponents, length and strength of schedule and other facts

STUDIES AND RE-STUDIES HIS SHOT, THEN FLUB – IT FALLS INTO A TRAP

By HENRY McLEMORE.

RANCHO SANTA FE, Cal.—(UP)—It was a dramatic moment with a dramatic setting.

The 18th green of the Rancho Santa Fe golf course was framed by more than a thousand spectators, banked five deep. Up the fairway toward the crowd trudged a lone golfer.

He was the last finished in the Bing Crosby $3,000 open tournament. He knew what he had to get on this hole to finish in the money, because the scores of all his rivals had been posted

The crowd knew too, and there was a silence you almost could hear when the player walked up to the ball and studied his lie. It hung in a hollow ons fair of grass, just on the far side of a giant trap that guarded the green

Faced with a delicate niblick shot, the player made an exhaustive survey of the situation

Finally, the man walked to the ball took his stance, and made his address. Then there came a sick click.

The ball, completely and thoroughly topped, crippled a few yards and then ran into the trap.

At that moment, I never felt such a fool in all my life Because the lone player who had studied and re-studied his shot, and who, after all this preparation fizzled the ball into the trap was Henry Tolliver McLemore.

If the shame and embarrassment that swept over my body at that moment could have been harnessed it would have been of sufficient voltage to furnish light and power for three towns with populations of over 10,000.

Think of the position I was in! I had never had a gallery before Not even a gallery of one person, because my swing is such a desecration of the honorable and ancient game that my caddy always turns his back when I swing. Then, all of a sudden, I was confronted by a tremendous throng of spectators, most of whom played and appreciated golf.

I tried. Yes sir, with everything I had. I went down swinging Swinging poorly, but swinging.

But in this world of ours a game effort is not always rewarded My name did not even appear in the final scores I needed a minus 40 on that hole to get a prize As it turned out I got a plus 11 So I didn't get any prize only one game but it trails Ontario by half a game as the Warriors have scored one more victory

Diz Can Make More Money Playing Golf—If He Wins

SARASOTA, Fla. —(AP) — Dizzy Dean said winning the third annual Baseball Players' Golf tournament opening here today would make him $20,000 richer. He said he had laid a $1,000 bet, at 20 to 1 odds, he could capture the match play event.

Those knowing the links ability of the various baseball stars wintering in Florida were inclined to thing "Ole Diz" would have to play over his head to defeat Garland Braxton of Indianapolis, Paul Waner of Pittsburgh, Paul Derringer of Cincinnati and Wes Ferrell of Washington.

MacPhail Ready to Discuss Trades to Bolster Dodgers

By SID FEDER

BROOKLYN — (AP)—Now that the Dodgers have acquired a high-powered executive for the front office, Brooklyn's baseball faithful would like to know just what Larry MacPhail is going to do about putting a ball club on the field in place of the "daffiness boys" of recent years.

Who's going to play the outfield? what are we going to use for pitchers is any catching help coming up, how about the middle of the infield; and (with emphasis) will Van Mungo be traded? Those and assorted other questions were fired at MacPhail today in his first full day as the Dodgers' vice president and general trouble-shooter.

Larry, however, isn't promising anything for 1938 His $20,000-a-year contract has three seasons to run and the ex-Cincinnati Reds' executive figures that will give him time to develop something in the way of big league material from a "farm system."

For the time being, he's not going to worry about the brass bands, the fireworks and the red uniforms with which he instilled color in the Reds. He's satisfied to go along with those Kelly green monkey suits in which the Dodgers swaggered and wallowed—and stopped pop bottles—last year.

Definitely, his purpose now is development of playing material, rather than the purchase of established stars. However, he's in the market for players, and he figures in Mungo and First Baseman Buddy Hassett he has two aces with which to lead.

'Heart Throbs' To Vie On Mat

Hart, Montana to Headline Show Monday Night.

The Holland "Heart Throb" against the mat world's Clark Gable There's a match that boasts not only a pair of boys who are top light-heavyweights, but a pair that rate with the best of them for "looks" The heart-throb is Frankie Hart. His opponent, who bears a striking resemblance to the Hollywood idol, is Joe Montana of Camden, N. J

Matchmaker Tim Nolan had a lot of things in mind when he signed these sensational young stars to headline Monday's wrestling program in the armory. For one thing, he remembered Hart's great victory over the powerful Walter Stratton And he saw in Montana a grappler who could give Hart the kind of opposition he deserves.

Montana owns victories over Joe Banaski and Walter Roxey His win over the latter, however, came a full year before the Detroit school teacher won the light-heavyweight title from Midget Fischer in Detroit—a crown he has since lost.

Hart and Montana will wrestle in the main event of a three-bout card being arranged by the Quality club.

Stock Threatens All-Time Record With 791 Pin Total

Mutual Star Rolls Games of 267, 278 and 246 In League; Sonny Meder Also Hot.

CITY A LEAGUE

ILELAND STOCK came within four pins of tying the all-time city individual league record in the City Class A league at the Meder alleys last night.

Bowling with the Lumbermens Mutuals, Stock rolled a brilliant 791 total to establish a new season mark. The all-time record of 795 is held by Walter Fensch, who rolled the score a year ago.

Mutuals Win Only One.

Stock put together games of 267, 278 and 246 to lead the Mutuals to a 2933 total, which, however, was only good for one victory over the Roma Lunch pinsters, who compiled a 2996.

Bernat, 654, and Leathers and Michaels, with 619's, paced the Lunchmen, who climaxed their string with a 1047 game.

Sonny Meder continued his sensational mineralite wielding by coming through with a torrid 737 for the Miller Oldsmobiles. Despite Meder's fine string of 254, 226 and 257, the Oldsmobiles, who accumulated 3050 pins, took only one tilt from the Metcalf Pure Oils.

Paced by Art Thomas, the Oilmen won team scoring honors with a 3117 total, and the two victories enabled them to cut the Oldsmobiles' first place lead to two and half games. The Oils' string included a game of 1111.

Thomas blasted out a 276 game and 682 series to lead the Oils, while Mike Meder contributed a 651 and Dale Cleckner accounted for a 521. Art Hilborn shot a 649 for the Oldsmobiles.

Ties Mutual Team.

The Liederkranz club moved into a tie with the Lumbermens team for third place by making a 2712 total produce two victories over the Meder Recreation. Linser leading the way with a The Recreation rolled a 2760, with 629.

Braddock Has No Business Fighting Farr

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOS ANGELES —(UP)— James J. Braddock tights Tommy Farr in New York Friday night, and I think he's a fool to do it. And I believe if he asked Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey for their honest opinion they would tell him the same thing.

Dempsey refused an offer of $750,000 to fight Gene Tunney a third time, because he was afraid of what another fight with the sharp-shooting Tunney might do to his eyesight

Sharkey was not so wise. He rose to the lure of the cash offered him to fight Joe Louis, and came out of retirement He went in the ring that night without a scar, despite a long fight career. He had plenty of money, but wanted more. You know what happened. Louis hit him a punch on the upper lip that did something Sharkey would not have happen for twice the money he received for the fight

Braddock has no business fighting Farr. Even if he needs the money, and needs it badly, he's foolish to gamble his health. Jim is through as a fighter. He has reached the age and condition where he has no business out there in a 15-round fight.

Farr isn't a killer but he is young and tough and tough and figures to belabor Braddock after five or six rounds, when Jim's legs are gone and he isn't able to get out of the way.

Jim's only chance to win is to land his right in an early round Maybe he will, but the chances are against it Louis couldn't nail Farr, and Louis is three times as fast as Braddock.

Simpson Halts Wooster, 30-21

Limits Visitors to One Basket In First Half.

The Bulldogs of Simpson junior high school continued their winning ways by taking the Wooster junior high club into camp by a 30 to 21 margin at Simpson yesterday.

Coach Bob De Haven's courtiers, who held the lead all the way after the first period limited the visitors to one basket in the first half.

The first period ended 5-all, but the Bulldogs tallied nine points in the second quarter while Wooster obtained only a free throw, the half ending 14 to 6. Simpson coasted the rest of the way.

Lifson, substitute center, paced the Simpson club with eight points. Grasbaugh tallied the same number for Wooster

STOCK MARKET ENCOURAGED BY CAPITOL NEWS

Roosevelt's Conference With Business Leaders On Recession Spurs Mart.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Industrial stocks today led the market on a quiet come-back.

Steels, motors, equipments and specialties retrieved fractions to 2 or more points of recent losses. There were a few wider recoveries. Rails and utilities did better, but improvement was moderate near the second hour.

Yesterdays conference of national business leaders with President Roosevelt revived Wall street's hopes to some extent that a co-operative attack on the recession would soon get under way.

There was considerable short covering reported, the feeling in some quarters being the market may have been oversold.

Rail bonds pointed upward and commodities leaned forward all around.

In their search for hopeful market clues traders noted forecasts from steel centers that exports for some time to come should hold around peak levels of the last 1937 quarter. A substantial demand was said to be coming from England and the continent.

While the sag in farmers' cash income was expected to become more pronounced as the year progresses, analysts voiced the opinion the decline would be offset to a considerable extent by government benefits which, under pending legislation, would be increased by more than $200,000,000.

JURORS CHECK O.S.R. FINANCES

Chief Clerk Recalled To Stand As Inquiry Turns To Old Transactions.

usual silence concerning what testimony of witnesses was expected to produce, or the trend of the investigation. It was believed that Owen's testimony was being heard to verify some of Bish's testimony. It was believed that Bish, who at one time had charge of the reformatory farms, had testified concerning financial transactions while he was at the institution—from 1923 to 1932.

2 Others Called.

Bish was expected to testify again this afternoon. Also subpoenaed and scheduled for appearance this afternoon were Perry Swisher, Franklin township farmer, and Leo M. Corbett, who was assistant state purchasing agent during the administration of former Governor George White.

Swisher was served with a subpoena yesterday afternoon. In addition to operating his farm, he is also a salesman for a Columbus chemical concern which handles fertilizer. As to what he was to be asked, Hurley declined to talk.

Corbett literally walked into his subpoena. He paid a visit to the sheriffs office yesterday afternoon and was handed his subpoena when he walked into the office.

A guard was dispatched to Grafton this morning to bring back from the honor camp there Clyde Harouff, an inmate. Harouff is expected to be questioned either this afternoon or tomorrow. The grand jury has before it a letter purported to be from Harouff's father in Akron to Arch W. (Stub) Naylor, central figure in the parole system investigation, which said the elder Harouff was ready to deal with Naylor to obtain a parole for his son. The letter was written in July, 1937, six months after the parole board had heard Harouff's application for parole and had approved it, to become effective July 1, 1938.

Hurley said he would ask reformatory officials to keep Harouff in Mansfield until the grand jury is finished hearing his testimony. Also expected to testify when Harouff is called is Naceb Simon, an inmate, whose mother told the Franklin county (Columbus) grand jury, that Naylor had told her he could obtain a parole for her son. Simon is in the institution at present.

Ask For State Records.

James Bailey, the grand jury foreman, late yesterday confirmed a report that the grand jury would ask for the records of a state welfare department investigation conducted several years ago by Joseph N. Ackerman, then a state senator and now a municipal judge in Cleveland.

Bailey said a letter had been prepared Tuesday, but was not mailed until late Wednesday.

Bish was the chief witness yesterday afternoon and was the only one heard with the exception of a brief time when Owen was questioned.

Up to noon today, the grand jury had heard testimony from Rev. and Mrs. Louis A. Sittler, Columbus, William K. Mackey, two inmates, Owen and Bish. Rev. Sittler was chaplain at the institution until 1930, and Mackey was his successor. Although Mackey is now general parole agent in Ohio, he is still performing the duties of chaplain until a successor is named. Hurley would not reveal the names of the two inmates who were questioned.

Self-Styled 'Bum' Gets Year In Jail In Assault Case

Frank MacOdron, self-styled "bum" of Baltimore, will spend a year in Columbus workhouse for his assaulting last Wednesday of B. F. Smaltz, 64, an employe of the Railway Express company, who is still confined to General hospital.

A. T. Crotty, agent in charge of the Mansfield office, told Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court yesterday that MacOdron had attempted to steal a fire extinguisher and that Smaltz had seen him and asked him to return it. The transient struck Smaltz in the face with his fist, knocking him down and breaking his lower jaw on both sides of his face, Crotty said. Smaltz will be confined to the hospital for two months, the court was told.

MacOdron, who pleaded guilty, told the court he had been 'on the bum" for more than a year. He was fined $200 and costs and given six months in the Columbus workhouse, the fine and costs to be worked out which will add another six months to his sentence.

BLAMES ALCOHOL

CLEVELAND— (AP) — Coroner S. S. Gerber said today an analysis indicated that alcohol was a major contributing factor in more than half of Cuyahoga county's 349 traffic fatalities last year.

G. H. Gerber said that out of 181 victims on whom it was possible to perform alcohol determination tests 99 gave positive reactions.

PUSHES PLAN FOR COUNCIL

Roosevelt To Call Leaders Of Small Business To New White House Parley.

ies, qualified this yesterday by saying that he recognized that some types are in the public interest.

Pledge Their Support.

The business men, finding much to endorse in administration efforts, pledged support for the principles of wage and hour legislation, federal protection for farm income, modernization of antitrust laws, and long-range planning to keep industrial employment steady.

There was an apparent agreement around the conference table that the current recession did not call for renewal of heavy federal spending.

The council, with Mr. Roosevelt concurring, said that the immediate problem was to stimulate reemployment in private industry, and that continual study of this problem by representatives of industry, labor and agriculture "in cooperation with the government" was needed.

Recommendations of the council, together with comments by the president, included:

1. Stimulate the flow of private capital by modifying the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes (which congress is already working on) and by giving investors "reassurance as to the directions reform is to take." The president urged new machinery for selling securities to small investors.

2. Making peace with the utilities by by eliminating fear of government competition and eliminating abuses without crippling the whole industry. Mr. Roosevelt replied his quarrel was with only 15 per cent of the utility industry.

3. Make labor assume the responsibility that goes with privileges. The president said he favored getting unions, by general consent instead of by law, to make public their income and expenditures.

SETS TAX DATE

Treasurer Says Collections For Half Year Open Feb. 1.

It will soon be taxpaying time again for Richland county residents who have enjoyed a two-months "holiday" between collections.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb announced today that collection of the first-half real estate and special assessment levies will begin Feb. 1.

The half-year charge, which Auditor Norman L. Wolfe estimated will amount to approximately $800,000, is slightly higher than last year, due to a small increase in property valuations in Mansfield.

Tax books will remain open until March 20, so that no extension will be necessary, Kolb added.

CITY RECEIVES NEW WPA GRANT

$2,400 Allotted for Continuation for Records Project.

An allocation for the continuation of the WPA records project now being carried on at the city building, had received the approval of administration officials in Washington today.

Dispatches said the government had allotted Mansfield $2,440 as an additional grant to carry on the re-classification of city ordinances.

The program on which nearly 20 persons are engaged, was started over a year go and consists of transcribing and reclaiming all the various ordinances on file at the city building.

It is expected that the additional grant when released by WPA officials will be sufficient to complete the project within the next four months.

Ten per cent of the bill is the average tip given to a waiter in a public dining place.

CHINESE ENVOY LEAVES JAPAN

Departs From Tokyo Under Jap Non-Recognition Policy.

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Hsu Shih-Ying, Chinese ambassador to the Japanese imperial government, left for home today with members of his staff as the result of Japan's policy of non-recognition of the Chinese government.

As he left, to board a train for Yokohoma and sail in the liner Empress of Asia, Hsu, ill and depressed, gave a farewell message to the Japanese people:

"The sentiment of a race can not be repressed by armed force. Do foresighted people of Japan see the present situation as foretelling Japan's eternal happiness?"

URGES FLASHER FOR CROSSING

soon as he has completed a survey of them and the hours they are protected. He pointed out as an example the North Diamond street crossing, which has part time protection, and the Surrey street crossing, over which a large percentage of Ohio Brass company employes pass. The latter, Hunter said, is protected only part time by an Ohio Brass watchman, although there are four or five tracks at that crossing.

Many main highway crossings in the city are protected either by gates or a watchman only from 5:30 to 11:30, and some only for 12 hours, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. The mayor pointed out that the danger was double during the unprotected hours because drivers came to depend on the signals that are there part time.

Agitation for protection at the Bowman street crossing followed the recent accident there in which J. F. Uhlich, aged Mansfield baker was killed when his car was struck by a freight train.

chieftain—Sen. Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas—died.

Almost immediately the court bill followed Robinson to the grave. But the division it had created within party ranks was widened by a close contest between Senators Harrison of Mississippi and Barkley of Kentucky to succeed Robinson as Democratic leader. Barkley won by a single vote.

Alienated Again.

Southerners and some anti-court bill senators who had supported Harrison were alienated again by the administration's wage-hour bill. The southerners' wounds were not healed by a senate attempt to pass the anti-lynching bill.

The supreme court nomination of Senator Black (D., Ala.), an ardent administration follower, reopened the old court bill sores, especially after it developed Black once had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

When congress adjourned in August, little of the president's program had been enacted.

Determined to get his program through, Mr. Roosevelt called congress into special session in November against the advice of some of the leaders.

The president got a farm bill through the house and senate, but the wage-hour bill was shelved in the house.

A housing bill asked by the chief executive also was passed by both houses, but neither it nor the farm bill reached the statute books. Nothing was done on the president's other recommendations.

By this time the business slump had developed, and there were wide-spread demands to revise the corporate surplus tax law. Publicly the president left this issue with congress. His leaders there held up action until the 1938 session.

Dog Owners Jam Courthouse To Avoid Tag "Fine"

The rush was on today at the county auditor's office in the courthouse which was swamped by dog owners seeking to purchase tags for their pets before the deadline tonight.

With five clerks issuing tags in the office and William Miller, county dog warden, selling them at a special desk in the lobby, more than 3,800 licenses had been sold at noon today.

Auditor Norman L. Wolfe predicted that another 1,000 would be sold by closing time tonight, with a part of that number to be distributed through the mail. He added that there would be no extension.

Dogs wearing 1937 tags or with none at all will be taken by the dog warden if found running loose after today, unless the owner has arranged for the purchase of a tag, the auditor said.

A $1 penalty will be added to each tag purchased after the deadline. The regular price is $1 for males and $3 for females.

More than $6,000 tags were sold in the county last year. The funds are used to pay claims for farm animals killed by dogs, for maintenance of the county dog pound and for the warden's salary.

MARY'S STILL GLAMOUR GAL

prices were $2.35. When she arrived at the theater the manager told her that the house didn't have a $1,000 in it and that he couldn't meet the contract figure, but would pay $500. We knew the house had considerably more than enough for expenses and that the local management was merely trying to chisel down the contract figure. Mary picked up her little blue dishes and walked out.

"But on the other hand she sings for school children, at universities, and in hospitals for nothing. We came to Mansfield tonight for no more than our expenses because we had found it necessary to break an engagement here last fall. Then too, there was a slight misunderstanding. We were under the impression that this was to be a student concert, and not for adults."

The former star of the Chicago Opera company and L'Opera Comique of Paris, talked of the future of music in America, and of Hollywood.

"There isn't much to encourage, young, ambitious musicians, unless it is radio. Opera—even the Metropolitan—has lost its glamour. There are no great names or personalities any more. And the concert stage has been punch drunk for several years. Music in Hollywood is spasmodic; sometimes its sky high and sometimes its way down here.

"Hollywood demands a tremendous price, too, for what it gives in return. I'm considering an offer now, but the proposition doesn't appeal to me. I'd go out there and have to starve myself to keep under weight; I'd have to go to bed with the birdies and get up at 5 in the morning. I'd work like a dog and what the hell for? To pay big taxes. I'd rather buy a farm some place and settle down to let the rest of the world go bye. I'm fed up with glamour and the price it exacts."

There was only a small audience to hear her sing last night, possibly about 400 persons. But she gave them the same program that she gives to a crowded house—at $1,000 a night. And the audience appreciated it, for it was most enthusiastic.

Her voice is a lovely, clear soprano, reflecting the lights and shadows of the singer's personality, of her honey-colored hair and very dark eyes. She sang three groups of songs, one in Italian, one in French and an English group.

One of the loveliest of her songs was "Un Ariette" by Vidal. Her English group included the stirring "Unknown Soldier" by MacFadyn; "Love Was a Beggar," by Mrs. Hennion Robinson; Walter Kramer's "Faltering Dusk," an exquisite love song, and the gay "Gypsy Kin" by Farley. To an insistent call for an enchore she came back with "My Love Is a Mulateer."

She was accompanied by Harry McClure, who played three piano numbers. His presentation of a sonato by the American composer, Hendricks, and Chopin's scherzo, were done with technical skill and feeling.

Miss McCormic and her party left for Youngstown today, where she will be presented in concert tonight. Her appearance in Mansfield was sponsored by the music groups of Senior High school.

Chautemps Wins Round In France's Labor Crisis.

PARIS—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps and his newly-formed government won the first step today in efforts to arbitrate recurring labor disputes.

Paris truck drivers and employers agreed in principle an average 8 and one-half per cent wage increase to meet increased living costs. The truckmen struck Dec. 23, and still held possession of a number of garages today.

CHAPTER VII

Gerta Greenway's impetuous statement regarding the marital perils of Terry Cantine brought a smile of amusement from Caradad, after her first little shock of surprise. It was not lost upon the speaker.

"That sounded dreadfully dramatic, didn't it?" she laughed. "I didn't mean it to be, I'm sure. It just seems a pity that a man of Terry's ability has to be hampered—well, financially. And, of course, if he had a wife and family on his hands everything would be more difficult for him than ever. Don't you really think so?"

"I couldn't judge that," Caradad admitted frankly. "I am not in the least familiar with Terry's situation. I have not seen or heard from him in a long while."

The more she pondered over Mrs. Greenway's admissions, the more at a loss she was to find a reasonable motive for them. The natural conclusion was that Mrs. Greenway was fond of Terry, that she was offering a thinly veiled warning—suggesting that there might have been some early romance, that it explained Caradad's presence in the city.

But that was utterly ridiculous. Silly.

Instead of replying at once, Mrs. Greenway slowly ground the lighted end of her cigarette on an ash tray. She raised her dark eyes to say, with a shrug of her comely shoulders, "I hope, my dear, that you are one of those fortunate persons who have not had to worry unduly over finances. Terry is not. Please don't misunderstand me—he has done very well. But Terry should have been born rich. He needs money to exploit his unusual talents. This is what I mean."

Mrs. Greenway folded her shapely white hands on the gay peasant lunch cloth that covered the table. Caradad noticed that the slim fingers were devoid of rings.

"Terry," continued the musical voice, 'has a flair for meeting the right people. He has engaging manners. All women like him Men like him equally well. He's almost an expert at bridge, plays a brilliant game of polo—does everything and does it well. His associates are wealthy and the best possible business propects. That was what I meant when I said he could go far. But wealthy prospects have to be handled diplomatically. It takes time and it takes money, more money than the poor boy has. We are close enough friends that I appreciate his difficulties. You understand, I'm sure."

"It does seem quite too bad," Caradad admitted sympathetically. There was no trace of a smile, as she added. "You were thinking that it might help if he had a rich wife. I'm surprised that he hasn't found one, since he's—so popular. Aren't you?"

It was Mrs. Greenway's turn to be noncommital. "You know," she confided smilingly. "I really think Terry prides himself on the fact that he is not susceptible to woman's wiles. You and I know that men like that are the easiest victims of all. That is why I have taken it on myself to worry over him and, of course, he would not be grateful—if he knew."

With another shrug and a laugh, she turned the conversation into other channels.

"This has been such a pleasure," she insisted, when the two turned their faces in the direction of Caradad's hotel. "Terry mentioned a little party for you soon and I shall take it upon myself to see that it is not delayed too long. And I want to entertain you, too. You play bridge, of course?"

"Not very scientifically, I'm afraid."

"Oh, none of us," Mrs. Greenway encouraged. 'But there are several of my friends I would like to have you meet. We'll arrange to play in my apartment one afternoon very soon. And, in the meantime, I may get in touch with you. I've a car, a small one that I drive myself. If there is any place I can take you, I would be more than delighted. Or if you wish any help or suggestions with shopping . . ."

"That is very kind," Caradad told her, pausing before the main entrance of the Rushmore. "I appreciate your taking me to tea ever so much."

"It was sweet of you to go on such short notice," smiled her new friend. "I shall see you ever so soon again. Good-bye, my dear."

"Good-bye."

Caradad was a trifle disappointed that no message of any nature from Terry awaited her, although she had no particular reason to expect one. She dined in solitary state in the main restaurant of the hotel, experiencing a growing loneliness at finding herself in the midst of so many patrons. Every one else seemed to have company. The feeling persisted when she reached her small living room and went to stand beside one of the front windows, without switching on any lights. Thoughts of Terry, stirred by Mrs. Greenway's remarks, flashed back and forth across her consciousness as vividly as the endless procession of automobile lights on the boulevard

When the telephone sounded suddenly, Caradad was not startled to hear Terry's cheery "Hello, Dad. Thought I'd give you a ring and see if you had survived the day . . . meant to get to it sooner. Been busy?"

"Very. Among other things, I bought me some new clothes for the tea party this afternoon. It was very nice of you to do that."

"Listen. I don't get you. What tea party are you talking about?"

"I was only teasing. There was no party. But Mrs. Greenway asked me to have tea with her this afternoon. I did and it was—very pleasant. I like her ever so much.

There was a moment's pause and, when Terry spoke again, it was with a change of tone. "What are you doing just now, Dad? Do you mind if I drop around for a chat? In half an hour, say?"

"I'd be glad."

"All right. I'll do it."

"Terry . . ."

"Yes?"

"Look for me on the mezzanine. It's more pleasant than the lobby."

Caradad went to the meeting place a little before the appointed time, carrying a magazine with her. She took possession of a small settee with a convenient reading lamp beside it and became so deeply engrossed in a story that she was unaware of Terry's presence until he spoke.

"Must be a love yarn you've got there. I've been standing here for half an hour."

"What a shame," she laughed. "Sit down."

He dropped down at her side. "You're looking very gay and festive, Dad."

"Didn't I tell you I had been shopping?"

Instead of replying, Terry explained at some length why he had not reported earlier. It had been a busy day—trying to close a deal that had been hanging fire. In fact, he hadn't been able to do it quite. But it looked promising, he admitted in reply to an eager question from Caradad. An uphill job selling anything these days, was his somewhat moody conclusion. One had to handle one's prospects with gloves—wait, always wait. He rather regretted he had not remained with the Graham concern. It was all right, this independence, but a salary had its compensations.

Caradad nodded sympathetically. She was recalling what Mrs. Greenway had told her about Terrys business. And now, he was voicing much the same wish Caradad had heard across the tea table.

"I sure hope you don't have to worry over making a living, Dad. If you do, you'd better hunt yourself a rich man while you're still young."

"I can manage, after a fashion at least," she said slowly. "It doesn't take much to satisfy me"

"You're lucky." Terry gave a short, mirthless laugh. "And you say Gerta hunted you up today?"

"Oh, yes! She's interesting, isn't she?"

"Quite a person. I've known her a long time." Terry was filling his pipe as he spoke, staring thoughtfully at the lamp.

"Is her husband in business here?"

"Her husband?" Terry hunted and regarded Caradad curiously. "She hasn't any husband."

"Is he . . ."

"Dead. Rather tragic. Very likable chap, Don was . . . broker. He made a lot of money in his day and spent it a little faster than it came in, I guess. The crash in twenty-nine caught him like a lot of others. He couldn't take it."

"You mean . . . ?"

"That's right. Looking out of a ten-tory room and decided not to wait for the elevator."

"Terry! How dreadful for Mrs. Greenway!"

"Rather . . . in more ways than one. Gerta always had been used to the best and plenty of it. Lucky for her, Don carried rather heavy insurance so she's able to keep up something of a front. I don't imagine she has so easy a time of it, though you'd never guess it. A very clever woman, if you ask me."

Have you heard the Chant of the Tobacco Auctioneer?

It's Your Reminder that Independent Tobacco Experts like Ray Oglesby (above) Prefer Luckies 2 to 1...

"For 8 years, at auction after auction in Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky," says Ray Oglesby, "I've seen Lucky Strike buy exactly the same fine grades of tobacco . . . and that's one reason I've smoked Luckies since I've been an auctioneer.

"Luckies suit my taste to a 'T'. And as an auctioneer I've been thankful for Luckies plenty of times because they're so easy on my throat."

Your taste and your throat will tell you why so many experts, like Mr. Oglesby, prefer Luckies . . . Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many—yes, twice as many—exclusive smokers as all the other cigarettes put together!

POPULATION AT O. S. R. UP 392 IN PAST YEAR

Glattke's Annual Report Says 2,767 In Institution Jan. 1; 884 Paroled In 1937.

A 40 per cent increase in commitments and fewer paroles last year boosted the population of the Mansfield reformatory to 2,767 on Jan. 1, a gain of 392 in the past year, according to the annual report compiled by Supt. Arthur L. Glattke.

The present figure, however, is still well below the record population of 3,365 inmates in 1935.

Figures showed 1,246 commitments and 884 paroles in 1937 as against 976 new prisoners and 1,372 paroled during the preceding year. Thirty-six prisoners were released on completion of their maximum sentences.

Although prisoners were sentenced to the reformatory for 63 separate offenses during the year, robbery headed the list with 289 committed on that charge. Others of the seven offenses which sent 75 per cent of the prisoners to the institution were burglary, auto theft, grand larceny, breaking and entering, operating motor vehicle without the owner's consent, and burglary and larceny.

7 Counties Send Most

Seven counties contributed 64 per cent of the prisoners admitted during the year, the report shows, while eight counties had no commitments.

Cuyahoga county, with the greatest population of any in the state, headed the list, sending 326 young men. Others high on the list were Franklin county, 121; Hamilton, 120; Lucas, 77; Summit, 62; Montgomery, 53 and Stark, 40.

Counties which had perfect scores, or no commitments, were Carroll, Morrow, Geauga, Monroe, Morgan, Noble, Perry and Vinton.

Average age of the men committed was 21.2 years, with nearly 70 per cent of them less than 22 years old. Prisoners between 16 and 30 years are admitted.

Of the 1,246 prisoners admitted, 70 per cent were white and 30 per cent colored. Exactly half of the men said they were Protestants, while 30 per cent were listed as Catholic and 20 per cent were of other religions or reported no church affiliations.

A majority, or 766, said they had attended common school; 441 had attended high school, and 16 had been to college. Only 18 could neither read nor write.

Among the occupations listed were 407 laborers, 128 farmers and 86 truck drivers. Ninety-six reported no occupation.

Single men outnumbered the married more than four to one, or 942 to 226. Fifty-two said they were separated from their wives and 26 were divorced.

Book of the Week

TRANSGRESSOR IN THE TROPICS, by Negley Farson. (Harcourt, Brace & Co., New York., 305 pp., $2.50.)

Negley Farson, aviator, engineer and foreign correspondent, and author of the best seller, "The Way of a Transgressor," in his wanderings around the world, had never been in South America. With the fast-moving style of his former book, he recounts how that deficiency was remedied in "Transgressor in the Tropics."

Travel, with Farson, means people as much or more than places. Wherever he went, men of high and low degree warmed to him and talked to him freely. So that not only does his new book tell about the Barbadoes, Curacao, Cartagena, Bogota, Quito, Lima, and the rest, but it tells also of the island trader who with his wife was returning to Trinidad after his first home-leave to England in nine years.

The interesting book tells about the English oilboat captains who piled out of Lake Maracaibo; about Dr. Alfonso Lopez, the president of Colombia; about Frederico Paez, the dictator of Ecuador; about William Valencia the great poet of South America, living in his hacienda far up in the Andes.

There are tales, too, of bull fights, a night in a Panamanian jail, Inca gold, revolutions and fishing for trout in the Cordilleras. A large amount of history, customs, politics and problems of the southern continent is woven throughout the story.—C. M.

PROBE THEFTS OF 29 AUTOS

HAMILTON—(AP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents came here to investigate the recent theft of 29 automobiles.

Five youths, ranging in age from 18 to 22, are held on charges of automobile theft and, said Chief John C. Calhoun, "more arrests are expected."

The youths registered as Paul Hurst, 18; Walter Watson, 22; Arthur Burney, 19; David Loman, 18, and Reuben Anglin, 21.

Calhoun said the youths stole the cars, "joy-rode" in them, then stripped them and sold the parts.

BETTY HEALY, widow of Ted Healy, is stung by the whispers that her attempts to press the investigation of her husband's death were inspired by desire for personal publicity. Stan Laurel is so proud of his new bride's voice that he is sending records of it to 200 independent radio stations. . . . Family Life Theme of Film.

Dramatizing the everyday problems which face the father of an American family, "You're Only Young Once," with Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker and Mickey Rooney in the leading roles, provides the screen fare at the Ohio theater for the balance of the week. Stone is cast as the father and Miss Parker and Rooney as daughter and son. They go to Catalina island for a vacation. Stone finds himself called upon to extricate Rooney from an affair with a spoiled heiress. No sooner does he clear his son than Miss Parker becomes involved in an affair. The young lifeguard in the case happened to be already married. To top it off he receives word of financial troubles at home.

"Thank You Mr. Moto."

Peter Lorre comes to the screen as the celebrated Satevepost sleuth, Mr. Moto, in "Thank your Mr. Moto," opening at the Madison theater Friday. In the film a camel-driver disappears in the Gobi desert; a Russian colonel is discovered in his own library with a cocked pistol in his hand and a knife in his heart; a Chinese prince commits suicide; an antique dealer is murdered; a legation attache is found murdered aboard a floating junk, and only Moto can link these suden deaths to the mystery of the seven scrolls. Supporting the European star are Thomas Beck, Pauline Frederick, Janye Regan, Sidney Blackmer and Philip Ahn. Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen in "Change of Heart," plays today.

"Danger Valley."

Jack Randall, the singing cowboy, heads the cast in the western, "Danger Valley," opening at the Majestic theater Friday. The film follows the adventures of Randall and his pal when they ride into Sundown, a ghost town. An old man found gold and Randall teams up with him in cleaning out a gang of bandits who attempt to take over the town, mine and all. Lois Widle, Hal Price and Charles King head the supporting cast. The second feature will be "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," Wallace Berry, and Jackie Cooper head the cast of the circus picture. "Blossoms on Broadway," with Edward Arnold and Shirley Ross, and Boris Karloff in "West of Shanghai," are the features through today.

"She Asked For It."

A brand new kind of mystery-comedy comes to the screen of the Ritz theater Friday when "She Asked For It," makes it bow. William Gargan and a newcomer, Orien Heyward top the cast. The film revolves around Gargan, who plays an author of mystery novels, and finds himself "written out," with not an idea in his head for a story. He turns detective then, masquerading as a character made famous in his own books, and takes the first case that comes his way. Miss Heyward plays the wife who can't get along with him. William Boyd in "Hopalong Rides Again," a western depicting the adventures of Hopalong Cassidy, completes the double bill.

CITY RECEIVES RECOGNITION IN C. OF C. PAPER

Cleveland Publication Points Out How 2 Communities Are Linked By Their Products.

Mansfield and Cleveland, two of Ohio's major industrial centers in the widespread Great Lakes trading area, are linked together in an article which appears in the January issue of "The Clevelander," official publication of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. The article, written by Harry E Martin, is entitled "Speaking of Mansfield"

"Into Cleveland pour truck loads of refrigerators and cattle, insulators and potatoes, ranges and eggs, bathtubs and salesbooks, milk and waffle irons from Richland county and Mansfield" the article says "Into this rich territory go carloads of raw materials and finished merchandise from Cleveland plants. The two communities are tied together by the bonds of related industries and interests.

Martin wrote that "this city of 40,000 people last year saw its factories turn out $50,000,000 worth of goods for homes, farms and industry. Its four banks handled clearings of $102 348,000 in 1937 Industrial workers last year received $15 500,000 in wages while secondary payrolls, including stores offices and the like climbed to an additional $6,000,000 according to figures tabulated by Paul W Williams, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce.

Cites Retail Trade.

Similarly, stores enjoyed retail trade of $18,000 000 The farmers of the county, finding the going good, sold more than $8,000 000 worth of dairy and other products and livestock in the home and Cleveland markets"

He said that Mansfield was built as the governmental center of a fertile farming community, and that it did not begin its rapid industrial growth until in the late 80's and the 90's.

"Citizens of vision quickly saw the city's ideal location for factories which could sell to large markets," Martin wrote.

"Such citizens as the late A B Black, who did much in developing the Ohio Brass company were among the far-sighted leaders in the community Among the present day industrialists who are pushing the development of this city are C K King and H. S Black, officials of the Brass company, Carl Obelin of the Martin Steel Products company, J. C. Gorman of the Gorman-Rupp company A E Allen of Westinghouse; James M. Hill of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, and Ben Shaffer of the Dominion Electric company.

Several copies of the publication are available at the Mansfield C of C. office

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1938.

It may have been noted before now, but an "efficiency expert" is invariably from out of town.

There is at least a suspicion that in Ohio politics "the paths of glory lead but to the gravy."

A consoling thought is that if American missionaries are forced out of China they can continue in similar work close at home.

School for Police Officers.

MOST recent success of G-men in running down the kidnap-murderer of Charles S. Ross, of Chicago, serves to again emphasize the importance of training a greatly increased number of law enforcement officials along the more modern and scientific lines developed within the past few years by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Announcement that Mansfield's police chief, Meade K. Bates, is in readiness to open sessions of a school for local police officers, is not only interesting but it gives promise of resulting in more capable law enforcement work, and also of having fewer of the unsolved crimes such as have blackened the city's record in past years.

Without intended reflection on the good intentions of any police officer, it must be quite generally realized that requirements for appointment to such positions have not been sufficiently rigid to insure even a modicum of capability in detection or apprehension of criminals.

With the instruction and training in modern methods of crime detection and law enforcement gained by Chief Bates during his three-months FBI course in Washington last summer, coupled with his experience in the Mansfield police department, there is reason to believe that he will prove a competent instructor and that other members of the department will be much benefited by the added knowledge they will be privileged to acquire.

Mansfield has been fortunate heretofore in taking leadership along other lines of civic endeavor and a fine opportunity seems now to be opening to "point with pride" to the efficiency of this city's police department in keeping crime to a minimum, in apprehending criminals and in general law enforcement.

Would Abolish Death Penalty.

WHILE the state of Michigan is giving serious consideration to the subject of restoring the death penalty, Representative Stephen A. Zona, of Cleveland, moves to have capital punishment abolished in Ohio.

After witnessing the double execution at the Ohio penitentiary last Monday evening, Representative Zona, in an emotional outburst, exclaimed: "It's murder, that's what it is, just plain murder!"—adding the declaration, "Electrocution is one hundred years behind civilization."

Now Mr. Zona has asked Governor Davey to extend his call so that a bill to abolish the death penalty could be introduced at this special session of the legislature.

The emotion of Mr. Zona, in seeing an execution, is entirely understandable, as is also his idea that electrocution is a century behind civilization.

It must be regretted, however, that Mr. Zona's emotion does not carry back to consideration of the hideous crimes for which these two men paid the death penalty—and to realization that those crimes are A THOUSAND YEARS BEHIND CIVILIZATION.

One of the men confessed murder but pleaded he was not responsible because he was under the influence of marijuana; the other was convicted of what was termed one of the most fiendish sex crimes ever committed in Cincinnati.

A proposed constitutional amendment intended to abolish the death penalty in Ohio was defeated in 1912 by voters of the state and the legislature has since defeated several bills along similar lines.

It appears that civilization has not yet advanced to the stage of not being infested with some of the throwbacks to savagery, for whom merciful extermination is justified procedure.

For Mr. Zona it is recommended that he consider not only the merciless killers who died in the electric chair, but that he also have a thought of their victims.

They Want to Work.

DURING the long years of public relief, which began in England's depression several years ahead of ours, it has been found again and again that work-relief costs more in dollars than the outright dole. In human values, the dole is far more costly because it denies the recipient his right to work for his bread.

In some countries, and in some local communities here, each method has been tried. Sometimes cash-saving has won over character-saving. The public attitude in the United States, in spite of much grumbling about the inefficiency and waste of work relief in some instances, is overwhelmingly for the job as against the hand-out.

This is shown by a recent poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion. The division was 90 per cent for work relief and 10 per cent for public aid through direct cash payment.

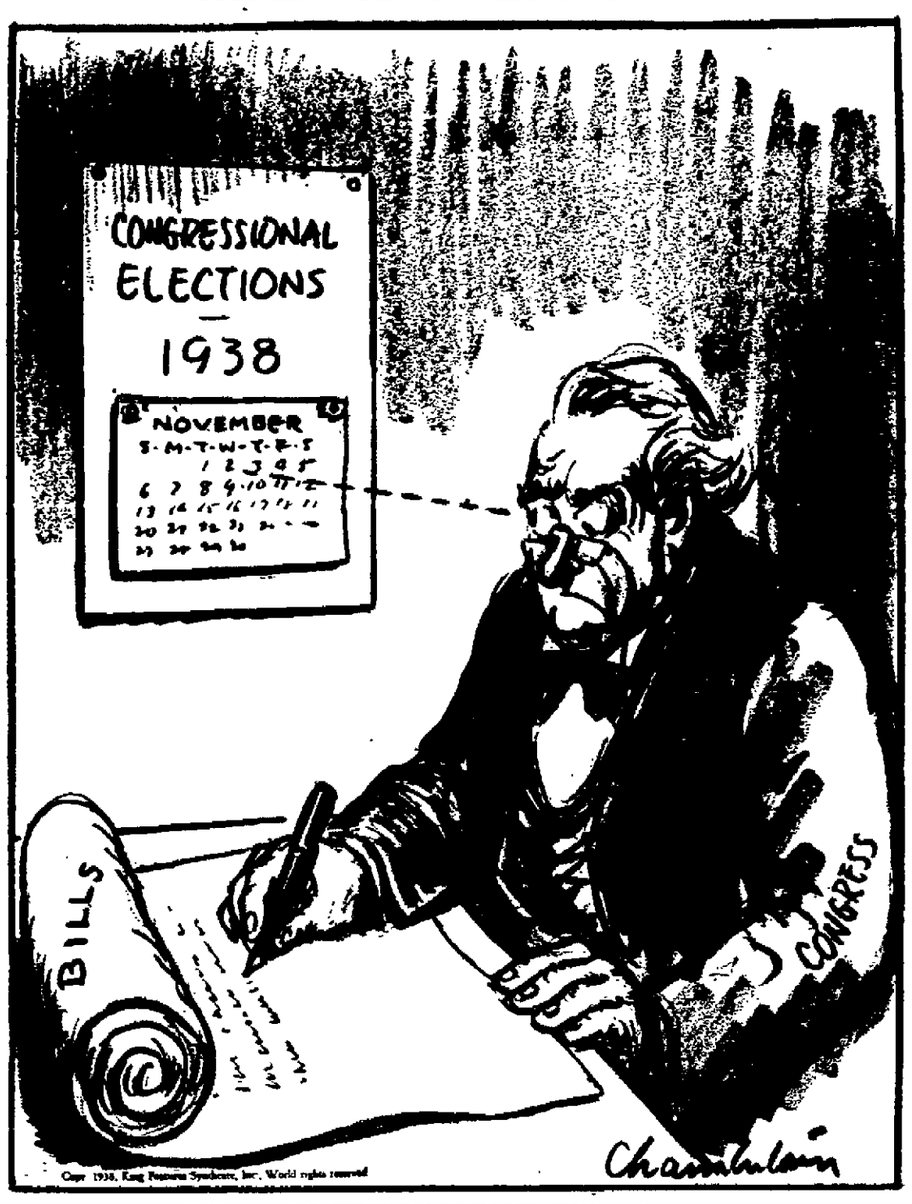
The significance of this poll is the heartening proof it offers that unemployed persons on relief are keen for a job instead of a dole.

Death In the Desert.

A RECENT issue of Life contained a pictorial review of the fight against tuberculosis. Probably the most startling revelation, to many people, is the fact that climate has little or no bearing on modern treatment of tuberculosis. Virtually every state in the Union is equipped to competently care for tuberculosis patients. Yet, tragically, thousands of people continue to flock to a locality which public dogma has erroneously taught them to believe is of greatest benefit.

Each year hundreds upon hundreds of people forsake home and family, or worse, bring their families with them, and spend their last cent reaching the deserts of the Southwest. Upon arrival they are ineligible for local aid and can do nothing but wait in poverty—for death. At home they could, in most cases, have secured prompt and effective aid from the county or state.

WITH AN EYE ON THE CALENDAR



Reed Appointment Held 'Astonishingly Good'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Such adverse criticism as I have heard concerning Stanley F. Reed's appointment to the federal supreme bench has been based solely upon the ground that the appointee's geography was not quite right.

That is to say, since Reed is a Kentuckian the transmississippi region is left without a representative in the high tribunal, which makes it a little jealous, mayhap.

However, that is not much of a count against Reed personally.

I do not discover that even the west is seriously miffed, either. Its spokesmen's complaints are mild. And, all of them, supplementarily, include expressions of good will toward Reed.

About the meanest remark that anti-New Dealers can think up, to make, is that the presidential selection not only was good but that it was astonishingly good, considering the present White House tenant's last one—of Justice Hugo L. Black. And that isn't really a damning of Reed with faint praise, for it is agreed that Reed's nomination was excellent "per se."

A GOOD LAWYER

On Capitol Hill one item in Reed's favor has been that he is rated as a corkingly competent lawyer. Congress consists largely of lawyers, and their high appraisal of the Kentuckian's professional ability and learning is significant.

While, as solicitor general in the justice department, he lost some of the New Deal's supreme court cases (notably in defense of the NRA), legal lights agree that these cases were constitutionally hopeless. There is a consensus among them that he did rather better than anyone else could have done.

Nor do anti-New Dealers hold it against him that many of them think he fought on what seems to them to have been the wrong side.

They say they believe he knew he was doing so, in fact.

But they add that they believe a lawyer is ethically bound to do his utmost for his client, right or wrong—within reason.

That is the lawyerly complex.

A judge is in a different position, of course.

Congressional lawyerdom gives Reed credit for knowing when to be a one-sided scrapper and when to be a fair referee.

POPULAR

Individually Reed is greatly popular.

He is a genial chap.

He has been an interviewable official. Newspapermen have liked him, in his job as solicitor general.

He is socially lovable.

He graduates into the supreme court with everyone's good wishes.

* * *

NOW, IT'S "GOODBY"—

To be sure, no supreme court justice can stay human, after he has been sworn in.

The newspapermen who have known him may as well kiss him goodby as he takes his seat among the "eight (other) old men."

I knew Charles Evans Hughes when he was secretary of state. I went to his "press conferences" regularly. I used to get an occasional exclusive interview with Harlan F. Stone when he was attorney general. I knew a Washington correspondent who grew up next door to Justice Pierce Butler's house in St. Paul. Others have had their early neighbors.

QUEER?

Could any of us ever presume on a previous relationship with a supreme court justice to discuss so much as the state of the weather with him, once on the bench?

Not by a darned sight.

We can get an interview with the president of the United States.

But I am bashful about touching my hat to Chief Justice Hughes or Justice Stone on Massachusetts avenue or to Justice Black in Alexandria, Va., where we both live—though I have interviewed them repeatedly at the state and justice departments and at the Senate office building.

These human beings vanish into nothingness as the supreme court absorbs them.

Farewell to Stanley F. Reed—unless he's a miracle.

(I do not think the supreme court should be so exclusive.)

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A Service Station On a Rocky Trail.

THAT weekly row at the Joneses—about the youngsters going to church. "What for?" they demand. "Maybe churches mean something to Mom n' Dad, who didn't have any place else to go when they were young. But nowadays—what can a church do for you? A fellow needs to rest Sundays—get away from things—not coop himself up in a room with a dull man talking and a lot of bum singing."

Every week that same row at the Joneses . . . at millions of homes where the church was once a living force . . . an unquestioned necessity. Yet these youngsters who questioned it now were, in most things, intelligent and sincere . . . ready to realize and meet an honest need. What was wrong? Had the church really lost its power? Was it true that it "didn't mean anything any more"?

Wondering. Questioning myself as I rode along. I'd been out since sun-up, riding the northeast line, nailing broken wire, bracing washed out poles. Harsh work, crawling through the chapparel, scrambling over granite boulders, with great peaks looming, blue and ominous, in that sulky silence which comes before snow.

Tough work, and for once my heart wasn't in it. The miseries had me. I was thinking of all the wretchedness dotting beyond that black horizon . . . those thousands of men just let off their jobs, with their desperate wives and starving babies . . . the blood-soaked world, horror and hate everywhere, and our utter helplessness. No escape from it all, even in one's own thoughts . . . no source of rest or renewal . . . only that snarling violence.

Thunder barked . . . a manzanita bough lashed my face . . . my frightened horse reared, hurled himself, around a turn in the trail, into a wall of rain. Surprised and suddenly soaked, I looked for shelter. Beneath me lay the huddled shacks of a deserted mining camp. Beside me, edging the trail, a little church very old. Sagging pickets in the rose-webbed fence . . . leaning tombstones in the little plots where myrtle sprawled. Above the rotting steps, a gaping door. Poor excuse of a place. But at least it offered shelter.

Inside—silence thick as dust. Rickety rafters . . . rat eaten floors. Some tattered paper flowers in a broken jar. Some crude and faded Stations of the Cross. Across one end the altar's shadowed bulk . . . flaked gilt, gnarled candles and a strip of ragged lace. Poor shabby place!

Weary, I huddled by the altar rail—half dozed. Outside, from peak to peak, the thunder rolled. The wind clawed, shrieking, at the broken sill. Yet silence closed around me . . . slowly I grew still.

Then something happened! What? I yet can't tell. But 'twas as though my fear and sadness fell—away. And left me wrapt in peace. Such peace! Peace tall as mountains—with a power so deep it seemed my sick and anxious soul had fallen asleep and waked—reborn!

Then, suddenly as it had come, the storm had passed. The sunshine trembled on the tangled grass, a bird perched, singing, on a broken stone . . . and in my heart, too, something sang and shone. My hurt felt healed!

Only a quiet hour in a shabby room where, doubtless, in the past, "dull men" had droned . . . yet, in that silence, I had lost my pain . . . my worried life had been set on the trail again.

Was that the answer? Is that what churches mean . . . may mean to anyone who'll wait and take . . . a place of healing for the heart's deep ache . . . a place of comfort when we trip and fail . . . a service station on the rocky trail?

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

Money Monopolies Next Target.

NOW we shall hear a great deal concerning the kind of monopolies that disturbs President Roosevelt the most. Banking seems to head the list—for by control of credit and money a group can control everything else.

The average citizen conceives of monopolies as controlling the commodities which he buys, such as gasoline, foodstuffs, electricity, gas, transportation, etc. He is a bit taken back when he hears that there actually is such a thing as money monopolies.

Yet, here are the words of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau before a congressional committee:

"There is only one thing that bothers me about the banking situation and that is we may want to do away with holding companies for bank securities. There are eight or ten holding companies that hold a lot of bank stock and I think that is an unhealthy situation. I do feel very strongly on the subject of holding companies. There would be just a few people controlling important banks. They are growing all the time. They have one in New York. I have no criticism of that particular group, but I do not think it is a healthy situation."

WHO TO PROSECUTE.

Undoubtedly, congress will be urged by President Roosevelt to pass a stringent law against such holding companies.

In the meantime, there are anti-trust laws on the books now. And there is a federal trade law against collusion. These laws have not been resorted to much in recent years—for the New Deal has been aiming at higher prices for everybody, on the theory that higher prices meant prosperity. (That thought has been changed in the last year, but a suspicion of it remains).

It is a strange thing that although the administration has an attorney general—Homer S. Cummings—it has depended upon others to do its legal battling. Stanley F. Reed, new supreme court justice, worked unceasingly as solicitor general. Now young Robert H. Jackson, who has been very much in the Roosevelt eye, moves up to the post.

DOESN'T HE COUNT.

But what of the attorney general? He hardly seems to count any more. Is it because he proposed that supreme court plan to the president? That is what other writers are saying.

That does not seem to be the answer. Homer S. Cummings has not been a real New Deal battler at heart. He has been a Roosevelt supporter politically, but he never really got "religion."

It will be recalled that he was to be governor general of the Philippines. Then Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, who was to be attorney general, died on the eve of President Roosevelt's first inauguration. Cummings was put into the post temporarily. There is no such thing as "temporary" in such a post.

"UNBAPTIZED."

Thus a really unbaptized Rooseveltian held a key New Deal post—and did nothing to fight a path through the hordes of the enemy. The real generals were put in as lieutenants, captains, colonels.

Then, in the midst of a defeat at the hands of a revivified enemy, the general laid a new plan of counter-attack before the commander-in-chief—and paved the way for the worst defeat of all.

It must have been galling to Mr. Cummings to see a young subordinate taken along by the president on his fishing trip. And it must have been a blow between the eyes to see another subordinate lifted to that dream-job of all lawyers—a supreme court justiceship. There is a possibility that Mr. Cummings may not be exactly the man President Roosevelt desires—but is slow at taking the hint.

The War on Cancer.

Cancer isn't conquered, possibly will not be for a long time yet. But there is substantial hope for this much-desired consummation in the annual report of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. The year 1937, says the report, saw the "greatest advance in the long experience of humanity's campaign against the menace of cancer."

More laboratories are busy with cancer research than at any time in medical history. More scientists are engaged in the study of every phase of the dread plague which is still killing 150,000 persons every year.

There is no valid reason to believe otherwise than that in time cancer may yield to science just as tuberculosis is yielding and just as such once-dreaded maladies as typhoid and small-pox have been all but wiped out.—Columbus Dispatch.

Health Advice

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND—

Appendicitis Danger In Neglect.

I JUST had a letter from a reader who wrote concerning the treatment of appendicitis. It is so similar to many of the letters I receive that I want to bring it to your attention.

The writer states, "I am writing in regard to appendicitis. If it is caught as soon as it is first noticed, could it be relieved of its poisons and cured without an operation? . . . I have read of people taking one quart of onion juice and been relieved of appendicitis. Is this true?"

So many theories have been advanced and fantastic treatments recommended for the treatment of appendicitis that it is easy to be misled. The only dependable cure is removal of the diseased organ. Like any other structure of the body, once it is diseased it becomes a definite hindrance to health and usually a real menace.

Has No Function.

Fortunately, the appendix, unlike many other parts of the body, can be removed without any ill effect. Indeed, it appears to have no function and is really an unnecessary annex to the body. That is why its removal bears no relationship to the physical welfare. On the contrary, a pus-infected appendix is seriously detrimental to health and life.

It is unfortunate that there is so much confusion about the treatment of appendicitis. I say "unfortunate" because the danger of appendicitis lies in its neglect, particularly in the delay of operation if that is needed.

It is probable that a great deal of the confusion about what to do can be traced to the universal dread of an operation. Too many persons resort to all other means of relief in the effort to escape an operation. I can readily understand this attitude of mind, but the danger of postponement is so great that its evil possibilities must not be overlooked.

Danger in Neglect.

Abdominal pain, nausea, gas, constipation and other digestive disturbances are suspicious symptoms. If your doctor decides they are due to a diseased appendix, do not delay the operation if he advises it. If you suffer such ailments and have not consulted with the doctor, do so at once. Do not neglect needed medical attention. Bear in mind that what may appear to you to be a trivial affair, possibly an upset stomach, may actually indicate the onset of acute appendicitis.

Taking a drastic cathartic may serve to rupture the appendix and lead to serious complications. Take no medicine unless your doctor prescribes it.

Let me reassure you about the operation for the removal of a diseased appendix; it is indeed a simple procedure when performed early. There is only danger after the appendix has ruptured or where there has been delay in operation.

"Second Thoughts."

We have an inquiry for the origin of this old saying which most of us learned at our mother's knee, in support of looking before we leap, stopping to think, giving more consideration rather than snap judgments in coming to important decisions.

The words appear in speech and literature over centuries, the reference of Fisher Ames in 1788 to "the sober second thought of the people" being much quoted. The origin of the expression, however, takes us back to classical antiquity, their author being the Greek tragic poet Euripides, who in his "Hippolytus," said:

"Second thoughts are ever wiser." This dates the fifth century B. C.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

IT'S a far cry from the old type of janitor to the superintendent of the modern apartment spire. The janitor was faithfully portrayed in "Street Scene"—the shirt-sleeved dumb Ole standing eternally at the basement entrance, doing nothing save listening to cheap gossip.

He was paid little—sometimes $30 a month and cellar living quarters for himself and shiftless wife. Often he became involved in shuddery headlines. The modern superintendent in contrast is a model of efficiency, well dressed, easily bespoke and sitting at a glass-topped desk.

He is paid as high as $8,000 a year, plus comfortable living quarters on the premises with light and heat. Many college men, especially newlyweds, seek such posts, for the jobs require much technical training and is not confined to collecting rents.

Such superintendents must know something of mechanical engineering, plumbing, carpentering and decorating. Also be quite a diplomat, for the job is in effect a sort of mayorship, smoothing out the constant wrangling inevitable among people in mass hub-hub.

Bird Story: A little old lady living much to herself on Lexington avenue had a canary that sang full-throated for six years, and suddenly the chirrup stilled. The owner thought first it was because her pet was moulting, but with that over it continued silent. At a bird clinic she was told the bird was past the age of song. A day recently a carpenter came to do some repairs. In the middle of his pounding the canary burst into a clarion trill and has been singing with all stops out since. Another carpenter stimulating the world!

New York has dredged bottom on restaurant names. A chicken dinner place is called Bird in Hand. And a chain of pine upholstered spots, dubbed The Shanty. And there's a Brass Rail. As a rule naming a restaurant for a person—such as Rector's—does not succeed. Exceptions are Lindy's and Dinty Moore's. Nearly all the established Paris names are in use here. Such as La Rue's, Voisin, Foyot's, Mascotte and Ciro's. And several entrepeneurs have even borrowed that Hollywood horror—the Brown Derby.

With all its gastronomical variety, however, the most savory dish is not obtainable here. That is soupy or wet hash. Gone but not forgotten Reisenweber's had the nearest, a concoction designed for those bellying too long at the bar and called a Blazer. It was hash, a bit soupy and red peppered up enough to bead the brow, on tap at 4 a. m. Many not toss pots hankered for it so keenly that they would arise before breakfast for a snaffle. David Belasco about once a month would have his valet awaken him around dawn, dress and hop into gig to partake of an early morning helping. Harry Leon Wilson and Booth Tarkington in their circles of the town also made that depot a port of call.

Too, there was a caravansary on lower Sixth avenue. The name I think was Castle Cave with a proprietor who never forgot a name. It featured a famed dish, for those who had over indulged, called oysters Rockefeller. They were served on the half shell, touched up with a biting sauce containing tobasco, raw red pepper and garlic and came to the table in square boxes filled with steaming hot sand. Many swacked to the arm pits used to stagger into the place and after a setting or two of oysters Rockefeller would walk out as sober as anything. Then at old Murray's was a pick-me-up invention of the actor John Mason that had a long run. Two raw eggs, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar and a spoonful of sherry.

Thingumbobs: Jim McCabe, popular manager of the St. Francis at San Francisco, is now in full executive control of New York's Pennsylvania . . . Gary Cooper's father, a judge, has authored a book of philosophy . . . Dorothy Parker has been one of the chief lecture draws at Town Hall this winter . . . Mrs. Martin Johnson is skittish about crossing New York streets.

The politest pedestrian was found on 5th avenue the other day. Lowell Thomas asked his pardon for walking on his feet. "That is nothing," he beamed with an eloquent bow, "I walk on them all the time myself."

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

AFFLICTION MAY LEAD TO GLORY: Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.—2 Corinthians 4:17.

Popeye's Visit With the Goons

Popeye, sojourning among the Goons at the moment, is illustrating the human tendency to ascribe to the other fellow less intelligence than is possessed by the visitor. Popeye has gone to great pains to learn the Goon language so that he may try to persuade the Goons not to hang J. Wellington Wimpy. After a very difficult conversation in Goon, if one may judge by the eccentricity of the jagged lines that represent Goon, Popeye said "So long," and was answered with "So long." "Hey!" exclaims Popeye, "He speaks English!"

There are a great many different illustrations of the drift which is carrying Popeye along. It makes no difference, for example, how many normal, intelligent-looking persons may be waiting for an elevator, in 99 cases out of 100 the next arrival will bustle up in an important manner and give the signal button a thorough pushing. Clearly enough, most of us figure other folks are not smart enough to do anything but stand around at the door of the elevator and sort of hope a car will eventually show up and stop where it is wanted. Most people these days and times savvy elevators pretty well, but it is the rare human being who credits his fellows with anything in the connection.

Right along in the same general category, too, is the manner in which we behave ourselves when confronted with someone who does not understand the lingo we use. If a foreigner does not understand English when spoken in a soft to moderate tone, we instinctively conclude—most of us, anyway—that he could do better with it if it were repeated more loudly. The net result is the embarrassment of the foreigner and a noise somewhat similar to a hog-calling contest in full swing. Some people seem to feel that it is obstinacy that prevents foreigners, children, animals and the like from understanding the first time, and so they are apt to grow purple in the face as they yell louder and louder.

In the long run, it is probably a good idea to concede the possibility that the other fellow knows something and in general to let thought precede speech and action rather than contrariwise.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

FREEDOM SHORT

O. S. R. Inmate Captured Two Hours After Escape.

Freedom was shortlived the other day for a trusty at the Mansfield reformatory. Less than two hours after he had deserted his tools and walked off the institution farm, he was captured.

Receiving a tip that a man in prison garb was seen hiking out Park avenue west, Supt. Arthur L Glattke notified a posse that was searching near the institution grounds He said the fugitive, William Holschuh, 26, of Lawrence county, offered no resistance when guards approached him as he walked along route 30-S, just west of Mansfield

Holschuh was sent to the reformatory April 25, 1929, on a charge of auto theft and was serving a one to 20 year sentence Records show he has been paroled three different times, and each time returned as a parole violator.

ASHLAND CAGE TOURNEY TO BE HELD FEB. 24-26

Tournament Manager Announces Plans for Annual County School Event.

ASHLAND—The annual Ashland county high school basketball tournament will be held in the Ashland college gym extending from Thursday, Feb. 24 until Saturday night, when the final game will be played, according to O. H. Maffett, county high school superintendent, and manager of the tournament.

Preliminaries to the tournament will be held Thursday, Feb. 24, semi finals will be played on Friday, and final games will be played Saturday. The games begin at 4:30 p. m. on the first day, and at 7:30 p. m. on the last days.

Tourney Rules.

Rules covering the tournament as given by the manager state that any high school whose members are in good standing in the State Athletic association may participate in the play.

The rules further state that any player becoming ineligible after Feb. 14, and he participates, will be ruled out, and his team disqualified.

Each game in the tournament will consist of four quarters of seven minutes each in the preliminaries, and of eight minutes each in the two final series.

Proceeds of the tournament will be distributed among the teams participating, and the Ashland county School Masters association. Awards will be made to the first, second and third place holders in the tournament.

A Farmer's Diary

January 19.

THIS evening I stopped by a neighbor's pond. It had been partially drained. The snow, sheltered by the bank on the south side, was still soft and fluffy. Here were the telltale paths of the wild folk; the weasel, with its dainty foot, the skunk, a harsher stride. But most interesting of all was the peculiar track of the muskrat. The forefeet had only four toes, the rear ones five. The imprint of the scaly tail was plainly seen, as it made a furrow in the snow.

Close to the edge of the pond was a mound of rough weeds, corn stalks and cattail stems, all woven loosely. It was more than a foot high and about two feet in diameter. I stepped upon it and heard a moist, hollow sound. Nobody at home. The muskrat evidently did not want to be disturbed.

Yes, within that mound so roughly built, is a cozy home. Here, our little friend sits in comfort, sheltered in his dense coat of fur. He lives upon his store of roots and sticks. For a more tasty morsel he digs into the mud and opens a clam, or captures a fish. Here he laughs at want and the cold blasts of winter. His is a philosophy of thrift and comfort.

Best Cough Remedy Is Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

U. S. Demands Details of Vessel's Seizure By Fascists

TANKER HELD BY WARSHIPS, FRANCE HEARS

French Vessel Reports Seeing American Ship Held Off Barcelona Coast.

PARIS — (AP) — French and American naval authorities today sought details of the reported seizure of an American oil tanker by two Spanish insurgent war vessels off Barcelona.

The French naval ministry said the French destroyer Vauquelin reported the tanker Nantucket Chief was steaming toward Palma, on insurgent Mallorca, Tuesday.

The Vauquelin sighted the tanker, formerly named the Gulflight, and the insurgent gunboats in the Mediterranean, 50 miles north of the Balearic islands, which include Mallorca.

Shows U. S. Flag.

The Vauquelin's message confirmed that the Nantucket Chief was flying the American flag and declared she had an American crew.

The Nantucket Chief was reported reliably to have been carrying a cargo of oil from Tuapse, Russian Black sea port, to Barcelona, government Spain.

Both the French navy ministry and the American embassy said it was not determined whether the ship was seized within Spanish territorial waters.

A navy ministry spokesman said the French were "investigating" and the United States naval attache's office said he was seeking details and that Washington had been informed.

(In Houston, Tex., L. J. Walsh, representative of the Nantucket steamship company, said their London agent arranged for the tankers cargo and that "we do not know what her cargo was or her destination.")

The tanker last was reported being escorted to Palma, on insurgent Mallorca in the Mediterranean.

(Shipping circles believed the Nantucket Chief might be the same oil tanker, then the Gulflight, damaged by a torpedo from a German submarine in 1915 with the loss of three lives.)

Details Lacking.

Insurgent sources in Paris professed lack of information of the reported capture but said it was "the logical fate of any ship that tries to break the blockade" of government ports set up by Spanish insurgents.

Meanwhile, on the Teruel front 160 miles to the east of government Madrid, Spanish insurgents reported a fresh advance brought the Plateau Las Pedrizas under their control.

A broadcast from insurgent Salamanca reported also that a double column of government troops marching toward Villastor was "annihilated" by insurgent aerial attack.

Insurgents in aerial bombardment of Barcelona yesterday killed 150 persons and wounded at least 200. (Reuters. British news agency, dispatches said 220 were killed.)

Government Valencia likewise was bombed with a possible 100 dead.

Auditor Holds Up Expense Bills Of Senate Committee

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, it was learned today, has refused to pay $833 in committee expenses of 20 members of the Ohio senate pending a ruling from the attorney general on the legality of part of their claims.

The auditor asked Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy whether members of the legislature may be paid a mileage allowance for attending committee meetings in addition to the regular weekly mileage allowed them by law.

The weekly mileage rate is three cents a mile; the committee rate, six cents.

The attorney general is on vacation and a ruling is not expected for at least two weeks.

The senate clerk's office said the members were allowed expenses for meals and lodging if they attended committee meetings on a day when no session of the senate was held.

Defenders of Central park who are determined to keep the beauty spot intact against the march of traffic will be cheered by the statement of Mary McCormic, opera star who sang here last night. She said she sang here about 10 years ago, and that she always remembered two things distinctly: the park of tall trees in the center of the city, and a "very nice minister who had charge of the Civic Music programs." The latter was Rev. Arthur Hughes, who was formerly pastor of First Presbyterian church. On her many long concert tours whenever she drove through a city or town with a public square, she was always reminded of Mansfield, she said.

'MISTAKE', JAPS CLAIM AGAIN

Threat To Invade British Area 'Misunderstanding' Officers Declare.

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Shanghai British circles received word today that Japanese forces at Tientsin had explained as a "misunderstanding" a threat to invade the British concession—which could have meant an armed clash with British troops.

The first Lancashire fusiliers, only 850 fighting men, had stood ready to repel the threatened invasion, authorative British circles here declared. Their version of the incident was:

Yesterday Japanese warned that they would enter the British concession forcibly unless Chinese suspected of anti-Japanese activities were expelled. The threat was understood to be virtually an ultimatum expiring at 3 p. m.

The British troops waited for the zero hour, under orders to fight back, even though such action might have meant annihilation, since Japanese have thousands of men at Tientsin.

The supposed zero hour passed and nothing occurred. Then the incident was settled with the assertion that it was a misunderstanding.

Although Chinese reported additional gains by their troops counter-attacking in the Yangtze river valley and on the seacoast south of Shanghai, snow and sleet halted most military operations and frustrated Japanese air bombardment.

The cold caused acute suffering among thousands of war refugees.

5 RECEIVE PRISON TERMS, 3 PUT ON PROBATION ON GUILTY PLEAS

Disposing of eight criminal cases in common pleas court yesterday afternoon, and today, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston sentenced three prisoners to the Ohio penitentiary, one to the Toledo workhouse, one to the Mansfield reformatory and placed three on probation. The men were indicted last week by the grand jury.

Glenn Lett, 27, Mansfield, former inmate of the reformatory who was indicted for robbery, drew a 10 to 20 year term in the penitentiary. Lett pleaded guilty through his counsel, Atty. J. V. Will, to the robbery of a Rowland avenue filling station several weeks ago. He obtained $9 in the daylight hold-up and was apprehended by police a few minutes later.

On their pleas of guilty to indictments for non-support, Conrad Sheetz and Ralph Bunting, both of Mansfield, were given one-to-three year sentences in the penitentiary.

James McGhee, colored, who was indicted for carrying concealed weapons, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in the Toledo workhouse.

Atty. Will entered a plea of guilty for M. C. Clark, Mansfield, indicted for forgery, and Clark received a one-to-20 year term in the reformatory. Clark, who came here from Niagara Falls, N. Y., admitted forging three checks in Mansfield for $49.

Arthur Aegerter, indicted on an embezzlement count, and Edward Kahill, who pleaded guilty to an indictment for forgery, were placed on probation to Harry T. Crouse, county probation officer.

Aegerter, who was returned to Mansfield from San Diego, Calif., admitted embezzling $73 from the Pioneer Storage company, his former employer.

Represented by Atty. George W. Biddle, James Jones, jr., Mansfield, pleaded guilty this morning to a charge of shooting with intent to wound and was placed on probation for a five-year period.

Jones, who Judge Huston said has a good record, will be permitted to return to a job in Saginaw, Mich., but must report monthly to Probation Officer Crouse.

With the courtroom crowded, Judge Huston took two statutory cases into the jury room for private hearings, explaining that "there are certain cases the court thinks should not be paraded before the curious public."

Both cases were continued. They involve Louis Bence and William Kanz, Mansfield youths, indicted for offenses against a 16-year-old Mansfield girl.

A plea of guilty for Bence was submitted by Atty. Biddle, his counsel, while Atty. Will entered a guilty plea for Kanz.

LEARNS STATE PAYS DOUBLE ON COAL ORDERS

Committee Ending Cleveland Quiz, Faces Fund Blockade Built By House.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A special senate committee, trailing charges of legalized graft into the Cleveland sector, returned to the state capital today to face an uncertain future.

Action of the house yesterday in tabling efforts of Republicans and insurgent Democrats to approve a $40,000 appropriation for expenses of the anti-administration committee, already sanctioned by the senate, and probable early adjournment of the lower legislative body, left in doubt the status of the graft-hunting group.

However, Committee Counsel James Metzenbaum, just back from the Ohio metropolis where the group scrutinized the state purchasing and liquor departments, said brusquely:

"In almost every field of the inquiry we have entered, we have found such a multitude of cases that we couldn't possibly show them all."

Prices Doubled.

After hearing testimony yesterday from Chester Patterson, head of Cleveland's purchasing department, that the city paid an average of 87½ cents a ton for coal, Metzenbaum said:

"The state paid an average of $1.60 a ton at the mine for 10,471 tons of coal purchased during 1937 for the Cleveland State hospital—nearly twice as much as the city of Cleveland pays."

Said Sen. John Taylor of Salem:

"Even if no question of graft were involved, investigation of coal purchases alone should go forward to determine why there is such lower ones by Cleveland, while miners can't get a cent or two more for their work."

Committee Chairman J. Ralph Seidner (D-Mahoning) asserted the state was losing "four to five million dollars annually through inefficient operation of the liquor department.

"This money should be going into old age pensions," he said.

The Cleveland session was enlivened frequently by clashes between Metzenbaum and Harry W Smith, Cleveland supervisor for the liquor department and native of Lancaster. A statment by Smith that "I have nothing to hide, I am resting on my record," brought from the committee counsel the retort:

"You are going to be obliged to rest on your record."

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Why the Radicals Prevail.

THERE IS overwhelming testimony to the effect that at the many conferences with business men held at the White House in the last few weeks, the president has done all the talking and very little listening.

Evidence of this has come from friendly as well as unfriendly visitors. Nor does it surprise those who have known him long and observed him well. All his life Mr. Roosevelt has loved to talk. And he likes it better now than ever because naturally his listeners are more flatteringly attentive. A congenital fondness for the sound of a man's own voice is almost certain to be enhanced by the presidency and it takes more than a little self-restraint to keep the tendency within bounds.

OF COURSE, the truth is that Mr. Roosevelt is an extremely good talker. Fluent, plausible, ready of wit, quick in repartee, gay and good-humored, he never shows to better advantage or has greater enjoyment than in the many White House conferences at which he presides, sets the pace and makes the rules. This is particularly true of his press conferences, where in his effort to keep them newsy and interesting—and the correspondents grateful—he often has been led into saying unpremeditated and dramatic things, which make the front pages one day, but are not later translated into action at all. His recent declaration against "all holding companies" was an instance.

* * *

IT SEEMS clear that Mr. Roosevelt did not realize the full implications of his remark, had not given consideration either to the impracticability of the idea or its effect. The suggestion, so far as can be learned, came to him from one of his more liberal friends. A planted question at the press conference gave the opportunity to talk and he talked. There is sound reason to believe that he was glad of the chance to make his declaration just ahead of the Lamont-Young-Lewis visit because of the pleasing assurance it gave the "advanced thinkers" of his inner circle that he is "standing firm" and not about to be taken into camp by the "Bourbons," which dire possibility they press upon him every time he confers with more than one conservative at a time.

* * *

HOWEVER, the idea of abolishing all holding companies already has shrunk to negligible size. No one now expects Mr. Roosevelt to make good on that press conference statement. He will present no such recommendation in his forthcoming "business reform" message. It is no part of the Richberg plan—it is no part of anybody's plan, and it could not be put through congress if it were. The most expected from the president along this line is a recommendation to end bank holding companies, which is an old idea. There is no reason he cannot get favorable action on that because there are many men in congress of a conservative tendency who were for it long before a holding company of any kind interested Mr. Roosevelt at all.

* * *

HOWEVER, that is vastly different from the thing he advocated at his press conference. There is, in fact, so often a discrepancy between his follow-up and these press conference balloons that the less ebullient of the correspondents are learning to expect and discount it, though, of course, this does not interfere with the first-day "story." Even when they think it may be phony, they are bound to write it, because anything that comes from the president must be treated seriously. In the conferences with business men Mr. Roosevelt has not been as jolly as in his conferences with newspaper men. On the contrary, he has lectured the former upon their iniquities even while expressing a desire to aid them in every way possible. Business men who have been at the White House have complained later that Mr. Roosevelt's conversational proposals conflict.

* * *

THAT Mr. Roosevelt is not clear in his mind which road to follow is now generally accepted. The fact has been evidenced in many ways. He is urged in one direction by the business men and certain labor leaders who regard cooperation as vital, and propelled in the other by his radical friends, such as Robert Jackson, Thomas Corcoran and Leon Henderson, whose efforts are concentrated upon nullifying the effect of any conservative counsel. It is now expected the latter will prevail; that his message to congress will be colored by their views on monopoly and the accompanying bill, being of their manufacture, will make co-operation exceedingly difficult.

* * *

ONE reason the young radicals generally prevail in this struggle to "point" the president, which has gone on intermittently for four years, is because Mr. Roosevelt's personal feelings dominate his judgment. The radicals are not only his personal friends, but they are mostly on the federal pay roll. Some of them, like Jackson, are feverish with political ambitions which can only be realized through Roosevelt favor. Their disposition is to treat Mr. Roosevelt as having a corner on wisdom and virtue, and to hate his opponents openly and violently. Far more than the weight of their arguments, this gives them advantage over the more conservative counselors, accounts for much of their presidential influence.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Always fond of reaching into history's grab-bag for film material, Cecil B. DeMille in his newest exploration has extracted a rich prize in "The Buccaneer."

Based on Lyle Saxon's opulent biography, "Lafitte the Pirate," decorated with further research and the customary embroidery of fiction, the new picture projects a neatly woven, romantic and action-filled tale of the famous "privateer" of Louisiana's Barataria bay.

As usual with DeMille's film histories, "The Buccaneer" is more true to the spirit of its period and to its duties as romantic entertainment than it is to dry chronological record. Disputes, if any, on this score can be left to the historians. The average film-shopper, intent on entertainment, should find it in "The Buccaneer."

Fredric March plays Lafitte with expected dash and a fair restraint considering his swashbuckling role. His French accent, barring a few slips, is acceptable. In the heroine's role Paramount presents its new "find," Franciska Gaal, a little blond of winsome charm with a flair for pathos and comedy that should prove profitable. Akim Tamiroff, as Lafitte's prime aide, is the picture-stealer as usual, but others in a remarkable cast contribute notably. The Andrew Jackson of Hugh Sothern shines with authority. Margot Grahame, in a sympathetic role for a change, has warmth and beauty, and Walter Brennan as Jacksons backwoods orderly is a delight. Ian Keith, Douglas Dumbrille, Fred Kohler, Robert Barrat and a collection of the bloodiest, lustiest pirates Hollywood has seen further enliven the proceedings.

DeMille's spectacle finds its place in notable sequences depicting the American naval attack upon Lafitte's stronghold, and later in the Battle of New Orleans, where the pirates' vital part in protecting the city is admirably presented. Most thrilling sequence, however, is the dramatic assembling of the pirate clan, hastening in pirogues through the hauntingly beautiful bayou country at Lafitte's call to arms. This, scored like the rest with George Antheil's music, is superb cinema.

Incredibly bad cinema is "Swing Your Lady." But having laughed throughout its rowdy, heavy-handed humor and roustabout comedy we must report that it is a pretty good movie. Humphrey Bogart has a dumb wrestler, Nat Pendleton, on a barnstorming tour. One of the barns they storm is that of Louise Fazenda, a lady blacksmith. Then comes Love, and more fun than you expect. There's mountain music, and swing— and a special hit for a bright and chipper miss newly named Penny Singleton, who used to be Dorothy McNulty. Ray Enright directed.

Suggests Girl, Boy Marry If Possible

By VIRGINIA LEE

MY VIEWS upon the question of whether the young folk shall marry and found their own homes or be expected to stay with their parents and help finance the parents' home are pretty well known, I imagine, by this time.

I consider the parents very selfish and short-sighted who demand that their children shall give up their happiness and support them—the parents—unless, of course, there are very unusual circumstances which make such a demand necessary.

Surprisingly, there ARE some parents who do demand just that. They say the children "owe" it to them. They have worked hard all their lives, they say, and feel they should retire when they are old.

However, they would never have been able to marry in their day and have young people to support them if they had had to give up their lives for their parents. They don't think of that, it seems.

WONDERING DOT and the boy friend are in love and want to marry, but, while the boy's parents like Dot, they think he should help to keep his family—which is large. The boy, who is 25, is in business with his father and that, of course, makes complications.

I think that if any way can be found to finance the wedding, you should marry, Dot. A man of 25 is old enough to wed—in fact, just the right age. His parents should do everything in their power to help instead of thwarting him. The fact that there is a large family is not your fiance's fault. He had nothing to do with bringing more children into the world than his parents could care for. He should be kind and considerate to his parents, brothers and sisters, I grant. He should be willing to help in every way he can, but I do feel that if he cannot make a living working with his father, it would be better for him to find other employment.

If it is a matter of a year or so to wait, well and good. It would be hard for you, but you could manage it. But to postpone your marriage indefinitely for no better reason than his parents give, seems to me unfair.

J. B. is a young chap who lives at home and helps his parents. He has a married sister whose husband is not working, so the pair of them have come to J. B.'s parents' home to live.

It seems to J. B. that whenever his brother-in-law wants to look for work, his wife (J. B.'s sister) prevents him. Home doesn't seem like home to J. B. with this sister and her husband there. He feels she wants to run the house, and he goes out, after his evening meal, and walks the streets—"after being on my feet all day in a factory."

"Miss Lee, what would be your advise for me to do?" he asks.

Of course it really is for your father and mother to say who shall live at their home, J. B. You will, in time, leave and have a home of your own, I hope. Maybe your mother likes to have her daughter with her, and are you sure you don't imagine that your sister discourages her husband to look for work? It might easily be a jealous feeling on your part that makes you feel as you do, although I do not for one minute think you are consciously jealous.

Why do you not join some clubs or go out with friends occasionally? That would be good for you. You can leave, of course, and live elsewhere, although I do not think you should, as your parents would miss you very much. I am sure your mother would be broken hearted if you did.

Encourage your brother-in-law all you can to find work, and you can let your parents know that you feel it is an imposition for you to be helping to support sister and her husband. Otherwise try to adapt yourself to the situation, and even enjoy this sister's companionship, if possible.

Brass beds that no longer look well may be made to look like new if painted first with two coats of flat cream paint. Let paint dry thoroughly between coats. When dried, cover with a good walnut stain and finish with a coat of white shellac.

When adding dates to mixtures to be cooked, soak the dates in enough water to cover them, remove the stones and the dates will be soft and blend well with the other ingredients.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Jan. 21.

The sidereal movements for this day presage a day of splendid opportunity for advancing the interests and reaping rewards. These should come largely through the revitalizing of lagging affairs or through resurrection of old and tested friendships, particularly with those who may be in places of power and influence. Confer with these to set old things going or to restore languishing values.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of opportunity to place the fortunes on a rather sound basis, especially by manipulating old matters and making use of renewed contacts with old friends who may be in a position of influence. Long pending litigation, wills or trusts may come to a climax, or old investments or property values may reach high marks.

A child born on this day may be responsible, mentally profound and clever. It may seek a high place of power, stirred by ambitions and aspirations for prestige and personal popularity. Elders and high personages may be attracted by its solidity.

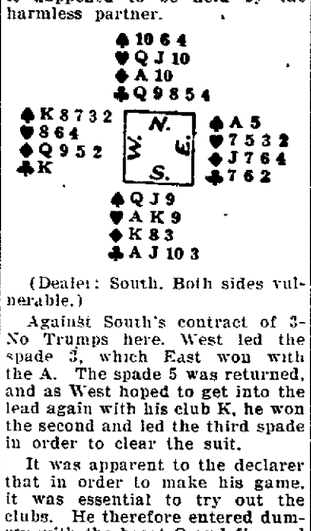
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GOING TO EXTREMES

In guarding against the dangerous opponent who has set up his suit against your no trump contract, it pays to take the most extreme precautions to keep that particular person out of the lead. You should even go so far as to protect yourself against a singleton king in that hand if you can afford to lose to the king in case it happened to be held by the harmless partner.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Against South's contract of 3-No Trumps here, West led the spade 3, which East won with the A. The spade 5 was returned, and as West hoped to get into the lead again with his club K, he won the second and led the third spade in order to clear the suit.

It was apparent to the declarer that in order to make his game, it was essential to try out the clubs. He therefore entered dummy with the heart Q and finessed his club to West. After winning with the K, West cashed his two spades and so set the contract.

South had a chance to make his game by foregoing the finesse in this instance. He needed only three clubs to make his nine tricks, having three in hearts, two in diamonds and one in spades. It was therefore a safer play to come up with the ace of clubs as protection if West held a singleton king. In the event that East held the club K, no damage could be done by winning the first trick and giving up the second in the suit. If West held the club king guarded, game could not have been made.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I was not in the mood for persiflage or, indeed, even ordinarily courteous colloquy, as Dicky, on his way to fetch Miss Whitlock, the trained nurse, warned me not to wake his mother.

But I knew that in our interview just ended, we had skirted and only just escaped a bitter and tempestuous quarrel such as in the old days used so often to mar our marital happiness. Those quarrels have grown so infrequent in these latter days of conjugal comradeship that one leaves me shaken for days. My jealous anger, aroused by Dicky's concealment from me of things in his desk and bureau drawers, had almost led me into speech and actions that would have brought on such a quarrel. But I had managed to control my temper just in time, and in grateful mood I was ready for anything which would emphasize my good humor, and enhance Dicky's.

So I wrinkled my nose at my husband in a saucy gesture which often has placated him, and answered him in the idiom which he so often uses.

"Waking Mother up is what I don't want anything else but," I told him, and with his hand on the door, he guffawed.

"As a slangster, you're a nice deacon," he said and vanished, while I went to the pantry to get the guest room accessories which spell the difference between comfort and bare existence to a visitor.

I found the kitchen occupied instead of empty, as I expected. Jim was asleep in an arm chair in the corner, his whole sprawled attitude one of patient waiting for his wife, while Katie, seated before the kitchen table, was busily going over queer-looking charts.

I recognized the layout even before she scrambled to her feet, volubly explaining:

"Excoose please, Missis Graham I no mean clutter oop table like dees eef I know you vant sumtings. But I thought you all troo mit me, so I get me oudt my detecatuff correspondence stoof und look eet ofer. I like keep fresh und oop to date. I nefer know ven I may need eet. Und you know vot? Sumtimes, maybe I write vun of dose detecatuff stories, make me some money on the side."

I was grateful, indeed, to Jim for awakening, and suddenly throwing a dam against his wife's flow of words.

"Isn't it bad enough that you've got that truck spread out all over creation," he demanded angrily, "without shooting off your mouth about writing detective stories when you know she probably wants you to do something for her?"

"You tend to shutting your own mout, and I'll look after mine," she answered, but the retort was automatic, with no real acrimony in it. Then she turned to me with apology in her voice but none in her speech.

"You vunt me, pleez?"

"Yes, Katie, I'm sorry to bother you, but Mr. Graham has gone after Miss Whitlock—"

"Oh-h!" Katie put her hand to her throat with an exaggerated gesture. "Vot happen? Did Mees Mary try keel herself 'cause her old fader-in-law tear her yung boob band from her side?"

Again Jim saved me from an outburst of laughter. I was choking for speech when he barked at Katie—

"Forget that movie trash your head's filled with, and find out what Mrs. Graham wants."

CORN AND TOMATO CASSEROLE—Two cups of corn, one onion, minced; two eggs, two tablespoons butter, four sliced tomatoes, one pound ground beef, one-half cup crumbs, one green pepper minced; one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, mashed potato or macaroni. Add eggs, crumbs, onion, green pepper, butter, salt and pepper to meat and mix well. Pack meat on bottom of well-greased casserole. Put one-half of the corn over the meat. Place sliced tomatoes over the corn and then more corn on top of tomatoes. Top with mashed potatoes or cooked macaroni. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees F., from forty-five minutes to one hour. Strips of bacon may be placed over the top if desired. This dish may be prepared in advance and stored in refrigerator food compartment until ready to bake.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What is South's correct play for 4-Spades, after the lead of the club Q?

Purple still has a strong following. Much is planned on delicate pink as a pretty contrast with navy. About hats! . . . We have had so much of the off face movement in millinery, that to have a number of treatments that are definitely forward is news and a style phase that is different. Practically all the brims with the exception of Breton types show a tendency to plunge forward. This forward movement has been inspired principally by the influence of the Watteau period of fashions and others styles identified with the 18th century. Many turbans, especially those with a heavy front, are set back from the hairline, and there is some continuance of the brim frankly turned back from the face. Neither of these is as new as the Watteau derivatives. As for the bonnet, it will be a popular favorite, too. New ideas in bonnets offer a squared, bent-down and broken brim rather than the simple bonnet.
